Labor Disputes Bill Held Over Until Tuesday In Lower House

Administration Fails in Efforts for Vote
Today

MANY AMENDMENTS
All Proposed Changes
Must Reach Clerk
This Evening

Madison—(P)—Legislators who demanded careful consideration of the controversial labor disputes bill blocked efforts of administration leaders to obtain a vote on the bill in the assembly today.

In the face of an apparent flood of amendments, the house, 48 to 42 supported a veto by Assemblyman Grass, (R), Sturgeon Bay, to delay action until next Tuesday when the measure will have precedence as a special order of business.

Assemblyman Sigman (P), Two Rivers, co-author of the bill, previously had objected to a Democratic move to postpone consideration until Friday.

Sigman said he had been advised that an attempt would be made to "amend the bill to death."

Provisions of Bill
The measure sets up a state labor relations board, gives it jurisdiction in industrial disputes and forbids employers engaging in unfair trade practices enumerated in the bill. It was sponsored by the Wisconsin Federation of Labor.

The assembly labor committee, in reporting it out for passage, drew a substitute which added the maintenance of "labor spies" and "black-listing" of union men to the long list of unfair practices.

A number of legislators were ready to offer amendments today but the postponement intervened. The house decreed that all amendments be placed in the clerk's hands tonight so they may be available in printed form Tuesday.

Grass said, in moving for delay, "I do not believe we should attempt to rush through an important bill such as this merely in the interest of a short session."

Seeks Quick Action
Sigman contended the bill is substantially the same as the one before the legislature two years ago and that assemblymen should be sufficiently familiar with it to vote promptly.

The bill attracted hundreds to a public hearing last week and many of its provisions drew concerted opposition from employers. Another specific objection was that it placed no restrictions on workers. A motion for complete majority rule over minorities in the selection of employee bargaining representatives failed.

Assemblyman Thomson, (R), Richland Center, introduced a substitute intended to meet many of the objections raised at the hearing. Outstanding among the changes he proposed were these:

Declaring sit-down strikes illegal.

Forbidding an employer as well as an employee to interfere with, coerce or intimidate any other employee.

Requiring workers, as well as employers, to abide by the terms of collective bargaining agreements.

U. S. Revenue in State
Shows Large Increase

Washington—(P)—Internal revenue collections in Wisconsin, today, showed an increase of almost $11,000,000 in 1936 compared with treasury department reported to 1935.

Last year the government collected $63,496,203.33 in 1935. Collections under the agricultural adjustment act showed a big decrease, as in other states, but in contrast, other tax collections offset this loss. Taxes under the AAA amounted to $2,738,920.01 in 1935 and only $21,553.90 last year.

Corporations in 1935 paid income taxes of $7,894,803.01 compared to $10,265,602.36 last year while individual income taxes rose from $5,711,012.03 in 1935 to $6,444,123.72 last year.

Miscellaneous revenue, however, accounted for most of the total increase by bringing in $46,744,928.35 last year compared to $35,896,642.06 in 1935.

Youth Arrested on Charge of Writing
3 Extortion Notes

Washington—(P)—J. Edgar Hoover said today federal agents had arrested Sidney L. Reynolds, 19-year-old Alabama university sophomore, on charges of attempting to extort $7,000 from Mrs. H. D. Warner, wife of a Tuscaloosa, Ala., paper manufacturer.

Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation, said Reynolds was arrested by justice department agents and local police officers early today and that he had admitted writing three letters threatening harm to Mrs. Warner.

The first letter was mailed last Thursday at Tuscaloosa, Hoover said, and demanded $8,000.

A second letter was mailed Saturday demanding $7,000, the director said and yesterday Mrs. Warner received a third letter specifying that the money be paid a messenger.

DENIES MURDER

Robert Kenyon (above), admitted he wrote a ransom note in the kidnap-murder of Dr. J. C. B. Davis, of Willow Springs, Mo., but denied further part in the crime. Kenyon, 20-year-old Ozark mountain farm-hand, said a mysterious person whom he identified only as the "Nighthawk" forced him to write the note. (Associated Press Photo)

Suspect Blames Mystery Man in Kidnap-Slaying

Says 'Nighthawk' Forced Him to Write Note Demanding Ransom

Kansas City—(P)—A gaunt young Ozark farmhand charged with first degree murder in the kidnap-killing of Dr. J. C. B. Davis insisted today the 67-year-old country physician was abducted and slain by a mysterious hill-country acquaintance he dubbed "Nighthawk."

The slim 20-year-old prisoner, Robert Kenyon, who led officers to the doctor's bullet-riddled body in a thicket near Willow Springs, Mo., yesterday clung stubbornly to his alibi that "Nighthawk" forced him to write and mail a ransom note.

Held in solitary confinement here for safe-keeping before his arraignment, Kenyon said he never had seen the doctor, Willow Springs civic leader, whose kidnapping spurred a family effort to pay a demanded $5,000 ransom.

Garbed in oversized coveralls and munching hungrily a meal of scrambled eggs and bacon, the youth recounted his weird story in typical rustic idiom to officials and newsmen.

Prisoner's Story
"This Nighthawk fellow knowed I stole a motor car over by Reola (Mo.)," Kenyon drawled. "He said if I didn't write the ransom note he'd turn me in."

"So I done it. Then the fedrals caught me in the post office mailing it. And that's all I had to do with the business. I don't know this here doctor and I never saw him."

Kenyon was rushed here immediately after the doctor's body was found in mountain roadside brushland 14 miles southwest of Willow Springs in the dark dawn of yesterday. The victim, lying face downward, bore two bullet wounds in the head and four in the body.

Michigan G. O. P. Chiefs
Ponder Reorganization

Detroit—(P)—Republican leaders gathered here today for what may be a showdown fight over party reorganization.

A dispute in tomorrow's convention over whether the old guard shall give way to the new seemed to be in the making, with the possibility it will go to the convention floor before it is settled.

The principal duty of the convention—aside from the nomination of a slate of candidates for the spring election which already virtually had been decided upon—will be to reorganize the state central committee. R. Glenn Dunn, legal advisor to former Governor Fitzgerald, and James F. Thomson, former state agricultural commissioner, were viewed in preliminary conferences as the outstanding candidates for chairman. Dunn had the backing of Fitzgerald.

3 Ice-Blocked Boats
Reach Port at Racine

Racine—(P)—Three fishing tugs, blocked by slush ice off the harbor entrance for eight hours, made port today with the help of the coast guard patrol boat Anthietam.

They were William Montague's William, Jr., John Benson's John, Jr., and Leo Gagnon's Gagnon. In addition to the captain, each boat carried a four-man crew.

The fishermen, returning from their nets several miles out in Lake Michigan late yesterday afternoon, found the wind had filled eight feet of drift ice in front of the harbor entrance.

Embezzler Sentenced
But Put on Probation

Elkhorn, Wis.—(P)—Claude Brockway, 43, manager of the Delavan Kroger store, was sentenced yesterday to a term of one to three years in the state prison by County Judge Roscoe Luce on his plea of guilty to embezzlement charges.

Judge Luce suspended sentence, however, and placed Brockway on probation. Brockway was arrested Tuesday on a warrant charging embezzlement after company auditors said they found a $188 shortage in his accounts.

Roosevelt to Offer Plan to End Droughts

Studies Report Intended to Protect Great Plains
Regions

SURVEY INCLUDED

Would Outline Plans for Each Area on Advice
Of Engineers

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt, having just recommended long-time planning to combat floods, set himself today to invoke that principle against droughts.

While congress began to digest his proposal for an ever-ready $5,000,000 public works program, he studied another report designed to protect the great plains areas from the devastation of 1934 and 1936. It may go to the capitol in the next few days.

Support for a flexible six-year construction program, embracing curbs on ruthless rivers and presented as preparedness for any future depression, was evident there. Similarly, the administration counted on sympathy for a 20 to 25 year program to prevent the drought and dust-storm center from becoming an "economic desert."

If argument for planning becomes necessary, leading Democrats planned to cite economists' estimates that the latest Ohio and Mississippi overflows would cost business in that territory $600,000,000.

Topsoil Washed Away
Other losses due to damaged homes and the necessity for relief millions had yet to be estimated. Officials said 300,000,000 tons of rich topsoil was washed away.

Experts who studied the last two droughts for the president said the relief costs exceeded $500,000,000. Their proposals, aimed both to offset mature and make the 2,500,000 farmers in the area self-supporting, were expected to include:

An immediate survey of the interior, extending from Canada to western Texas, to map plans for each area on advice of agricultural and engineering experts.

Establishment of a federal-states policy board to pass upon the plans. Local groups, similar to county-farmer committees administering federal farm programs, would be responsible for administration.

Federal and state programs to expand the public ownership of land, especially poor crop land that should be placed in trees or grass to hold the soil.

State land-use zoning laws, similar to urban zoning ordinances, to enforce conservation of both soil and water.

Financial assistance to tenants and land owners to enable them to increase the average size of many present farms. These loans would be conditioned upon practicing conservation.

Teachers' Tenure
Bill Is Offered

Measure Would Make Educators Permanent Employees After 3 Years

Madison—(P)—The senate received today from its committee on education and public welfare a bill extending tenure of position rights to all Wisconsin public school teachers.

The measure, presented by Chairman Nelson, (R), Maple, would place teachers on probation for three years after first signing a contract. After three years of successful work, the teacher would become a permanent employee and could be discharged only for cause, after a hearing.

When transferring to another school system, the instructor would be on probation there only two years, and then become a permanent employee.

Other bills introduced today would:

Appropriate funds to three departments to meet WPA allotments as follows: board of control, for a sewing project, $6,000; department of agriculture and markets, for inspection work, $15,000; vocational board, $15,000.

Raise the pay of circuit court reporters from $250 to $300 a month.

The senators, who yesterday asked inclusion of repair work in cemeteries in the list of possible WPA projects, memorialized congress today to continue production of agricultural lime in and works program.

Maritime Strikers are Set to Return to Work

San Francisco—(P)—Nearly 40,000 Pacific coast maritime strikers, considering their record-breaking walkout at an end, awaited a back-to-work summons today, and the joint strike committee expected to meet at noon, presumably to issue the call.

With the exception of voting by longshoremen in the northwest, where severe weather delayed distribution of ballots, the seven unions had completed balloting on peace proposals, and the results were piling up here.

Reports last night indicated marine firemen might not ratify their tentative agreement with offshore operators, but such action will not prolong the strike, for the firemen agreed to arbitrate issues in dispute.

City Council Restores Part Of Salary Cuts

Benefited

Sale of $481,000 School
Bonds to Chicago
Firm Confirmed

What Council Did

Approved 50 per cent restoration of pay cuts of fire and police department members, water commissioners and a number of other city officials.

Confirmed sale of $481,000 senior high school bonds.

Approved changes in workers' wage scale on new school building.

Approved school board's action in advertising for construction bids for new senior high school.

Restoration of 50 per cent of the pay cuts since 1930 of firemen and policemen, water commissioners and a number of other city officers and pay increases of $300 per year for the commissioner of relief and superintendent of the sewage disposal plant were approved by the common council last night. The council made the new wage scale of fire and police department members effective Feb. 1.

The wage adjustments were unanimously approved by the council as a compromise measure after Mayor Goodland indicated he would veto a resolution passed by a 6 and 5 vote, restoring salaries to the 1930 level. Aldermen DeLand, Grignon, Thompson, VanderHeiden and Voss opposed full restoration. Alderman Vogt was absent.

The resolution was reconsidered and the council went into session as a committee of the whole with the result that the original resolution was lost following a unanimous vote in favor of 50 per cent restoration.

Alderman Brautigan introduced the resolution which provided for full restoration of salaries for all city employees and officials except those elected and appointed. Mayor Goodland pointed out the wage scale for the street department employees is set by the street and bridge committee and Aldermen VanderHeiden and Thompson said the resolution was "too broad."

Hearing on New Trial
Plea Delayed for Week

Milwaukee—(P)—Federal Judge F. A. Geiger today continued for one week the hearing on a plea for a new trial for L. C. Christensen, Racine real estate operator who has been convicted of attempted fraud against the Home Owners' Loan corporation.

The delay was granted to permit defense attorneys to examine affidavits requested by the court relative to a question of legal ethics involved in the conduct of the action.

Affidavits were filed by assistant United States District Attorneys L. Hugo Keller and E. J. Koelzer, Peter Meyer, Racine counsel for Christensen; District Attorney B. J. Hustung and Gilbert E. Brach, Racine lawyer, who filed as friend of the court.

The government charged Christensen removed a $940 item from an abstract to some of his property involved in an application for a $4,000 HOLC loan. When Christensen's defense moved for a retrial, Judge Geiger asked for an explanation on the conduct of the case.

BULLETIN

Langley Field, Va.—(P)—Nine bombers of the 96th Bombardment squadron, of the United States Air force, hopped off last night at 2:45 this afternoon on a 4,000-mile round trip to Panama, via Miami. They were accompanied by one amphibian.

Federal Tariff Policy Is Linked
With Neutrality at House Hearing

Washington—(P)—House leaders studying proposed extension of the reciprocal tariff law heard the administration trade policy closely linked today with neutrality legislation.

Bernard M. Baruch, financier and war-time chairman of the war industries board, told the house military affairs committee belligerents should not be barred from buying commodities, other than munitions, on a "cash and carry" basis.

He said a ban on sales of all commodities might influence nations to make trade agreements with countries other than the United States in order to be assured of non-military war-time supplies.

Consideration of extension of the reciprocal tariff law for three years was the principal business on the house calendar. Some Democrats joined the militant Republican minority in the house to oppose extension.

Despite objections by Representatives Connery (D-Mass.), Wilcox (D-Fla.) and others, approval of this trade bargaining power for President Roosevelt by early next week was taken for granted. Shoe imports displeased Connery and Wilcox found agricultural imports from Cuba not to his liking.

The senate took the day off, after sending the $950,000 relief-deficiency bill into conference with the house late yesterday for adjustment of minor differences. This measure, awaited by the WPA to replenish its funds for aiding flood sufferers, will have right-of-way to the White House once the conferees' agreement is accepted by both branches at the capitol.

General Motors Defers Move To Evict Strikers; 'Reserves' Are Being Deputized at Flint

Attorney Expects Union
To Ask Men to Leave Quietly

RESULTS AWAITED

'Reserves' Ordered on Call for Duty at Any Hour

Flint, Mich.—(P)—Roy E. Brownell, attorney here for General Motors, said this afternoon that "I believe the union will ask its men to leave the plants here peacefully" and announced that he would defer filing petition for a writ requiring their ejection.

His announcement came after Police Chief James V. Willis resumed enlistment of several hundred "reserve police" to remain on call for a possible emergency.

Brownell said the writ would not be filed pending the outcome of strike peace conferences between high General Motors officials and labor leaders in Detroit.

Previously, he had said the writ would be filed between 1 and 2 o'clock this afternoon.

It was not known whether Brownell had been in communication in the interim with John Thomas Smith, general counsel of the corporation, who was a party to the conferences being held in Detroit.

Brownell said all preparations had been completed for the court action to set in motion machinery of the law for ejecting strikers who continued to occupy two Fisher Body plants here in defiance of a court injunction issued Tuesday.

Enforcement would be up to Sheriff Thomas W. Wolcott, who had refused to attempt forcible ejection of the men without such order.

Police Chief Willis said his "enlistment" of "reserve police" did not constitute a violation of a non-violence truce reached last midnight between city authorities and the United Automobile Workers of America.

The chief said he was not mobilizing his "reserves," but instructing them to remain on call for duty.

Lindbergh and Balbo
Have Confab in Rome

Rome—(P)—Two famous transatlantic fliers, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and General Italo Balbo, exchanged tales of their experiences today in Rome—marking the American "eagle's" thirty-fifth birthday.

Unexpectedly flying to Rome from Tripoli, the black-bearded Balbo invited Lindbergh to call at his hotel. They remained closeted half an hour.

Whether the touring Lindberghs planned to continue their flight to Libya, Italy's North African colony of which Balbo is governor, was not disclosed after the meeting.

Italy's air ace came from his African post to attend the reception Premier Mussolini gave for his future daughter-in-law, Signorina Orsola Buvoli, who will be married Saturday to Vittorio Mussolini, Il duce's eldest son.

Oze Simmons Injured in Crash; Manager Killed

Iowa City, Iowa—(P)—Oze Simmons, former University of Iowa Negro football star, was seriously injured early today in an automobile accident in which Elmus Strickler of Iowa City, manager of Oze's professional basketball team, was killed.

Don Simmons, Oze's brother, said Oze suffered several fractured ribs and a deep gash on his head when the automobile in which he was riding crashed into a semi-trailer near Wilton, Iowa. Hospital authorities here refused to give any information on Simmons' condition.

Four other members of the basketball team, all Negroes, escaped serious injury. The team was returning from Clinton, Iowa.

Flood Menace at Cairo to Remain For 2 More Weeks

Peak Is Charted at Less
Than Quarter Inch

Cairo, Ill.—(P)—The Ohio river's menacing grasp on Cairo's staunch seawall slipped today by a pitifully small margin—2-100ths of a foot—but the meagre recession strengthened the city's claim on victory in its fight against inundation.

Blasting open of the Birds Point-New Madrid, Mo., floodway cut down the Ohio's stage at one point during its threatening rise, but today's fall was the first from natural causes since the river went over the flood level Jan. 10.

At 35.02 feet, the water was less than six inches from the top of the concrete seawall. A temporary bulkhead stood three feet higher.

Another day of dredging brought five more levee workers' bodies from the spillway downstream in southeastern Missouri, raising to 20 the death toll of a Saturday night barge accident.

The spillway was flooded on purpose, to make room for water, the Ohio dumps into the Mississippi here, estimated by the engineers at 2,050,000 feet a second—more than 12 times the normal flow over Niagara falls.

10 Still Missing
Where the river fell once clustered on the levee to study the rise, they gathered and watched for the barge to come from the grappling scene, possibly with more bodies. Ten men still were unaccounted for today.

Colonel E. C. Kelton said the last five bodies recovered were those of A. R. Matthews, W. M. Tyler, Don Pruitt, Harry Sanders and Frank Lambert. Still missing were William Faulks, James Tyler, Eugene Tyler, Clara May, Bob McFadden, James F. Ruffin, Crawford Shannon, Albert Neal, Rance Smith and James Wilson.

With the Mississippi holding a level about stationary, more than three feet below the top of the 51-foot levee at New Madrid, Mo., that area's battle against inundation resolved into a lookout for leaks or

Regent Committee to Make
Eastern Trip to See
Potential Candidates

Madison—(P)—The executive committee of the University of Wisconsin board of regents will make an eastern trip next week to interview four potential candidates for the university presidency to succeed Dr. Glenn Frank.

Those to be interviewed are: Prof. Warren Weaver, New York, director of the department of natural sciences for the Rockefeller foundation.

President Ralph D. Hetzel of Penn State college, College Station, Pa.

Prof. P. S. Wild, of Harvard university's department of political science.

Prof. Kirtley F. Mather, geologist and director of the Harvard summer school.

The three members of the executive committee, Chairman John Callahan, Harold M. Wilkie and Clough Gates, will make the trip. They completed arrangements today and expected to leave next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Callahan said they would be in the east about four days but probably will make another trip later before they select a new president. He indicated the committee may be ready with a recommendation to the board at its next meeting, March 10.

Weaver, Hetzel and City Manager C. A. Dykstra of Cincinnati have been mentioned as leading candidates. The committee, at one time, had a list of 30 prospects.

Plane Wreckage Found
In Scotland; 4 Killed

Belfast, Ireland—(P)—An airplane owned by a London newspaper was found by a shepherd today near Newton Stewart, Scotland, wrecked and burned, its four occupants dead.

The plane, carrying two newspaper men and a photographer in addition to the pilot, had been unreported since it left Glasgow, Scotland, early Tuesday, enroute to Liverpool.

GOVERNOR MURPHY TRIES TO SPEED BASIS FOR TRUCE

CONFABS CONTINUE
Flint Officials Told to Work Together
For Peace

Detroit—(P)—Governor Frank Murphy pressed his efforts in a prolonged conference today to find a truce basis in the General Motors automotive strikes while the corporation temporarily withheld a request for an eviction writ against sit-down strikers whose continued occupancy of two Flint Body plants has blocked all efforts at a settlement.

At 1 o'clock (C. S. T.) this afternoon Governor Murphy had been in conference more than three hours with representatives of the corporation and of the committee for industrial organization and the United Automobile Workers of America. A recess was taken at that time for lunch.

As the conference was seeking a basis for peace negotiations, Police Chief James Willis at Flint resumed the deputizing of "police reserves" but emphatically declared the action was not a "mobilization of vigilantes." In this he was supported by Mayor Harold Bradshaw, who said "Flint is holding

Firemen Meet at Hortonville to Plan Association

Members Will Meet at Bonduel Soon to Discuss Final Work

Hortonville — Preliminary plans for organization of a volunteer firemen and protective association were discussed by 18 members of the Clintonville, New London and Hortonville fire departments last night at Hortonville. The chief and two members of each fire department in the territory will meet soon at Bonduel officially to plan the organization.

Heads of departments in the following communities will be invited to attend: Marion, Manawa, Waupaca, Bonduel, Seymour, Shiocton, Black Creek, Dale, Clintonville, New London and Hortonville.

"Requirements of a Good Fire Department" were discussed by Victor G. Rutter, engineer of the fire insurance rating bureau of Milwaukee, as he explained the value of a voluntary organization.

Have Two Engineers
"A good department needs a chief and assistant chief who are appointed by the officials on their recommendations," said Rutter, "and two engineers who understand water pressure methods, physical examinations for new members; a check on all department equipment; a systemized inspection of all large buildings in the community; a check on the water supply in the territory," he said.

Mr. Rutter commended the Hortonville department and the rural company on its response to calls and for keeping its equipment in good shape. He also lauded the action of men responsible for sponsoring the new organization of all departments.

Selection of Members
Cliff Dean, New London fire chief, told of methods used by his department in selecting new men. The applicants must be approved by the fire commission and then do satisfactory work during a probation period, he said.

In regard to equipment, the New London department checks all new hose and keeps record of its purchase. Tests are held frequently so that all equipment is in the proper condition, he stated. First aid work is also taught by experienced men. Fire Chief Martin Lyons, Clintonville, stressed the need of good equipment and said that figures and tabulations of insurance rates will show where each fire department rates. Clintonville will soon have a tower tank holding 250,000 gallons of water which will furnish a 10-hour continuous supply of water.

Clintonville Improves
Because it is "bad business to install small water mains," the city of Clintonville has added 28,000 feet of 6-inch pipe and has enlarged the hydrants recently, the chief said. Harris Hawk, Hortonville chief, discussed the value of creating a cooperative organization as the fire departments desire.

Steve Otis, Hortonville, explained plans of the volunteer firemen and protective association recently organized and which includes the departments of Brillion, Denmark, Little Chute, Reedsville, Kimberly and Hortonville. Causes of fire will be stressed at the association meeting at Kimberly Feb. 16, Mr. Otis said.

Members of the New London department at the meeting last night were Cliff Dean, chief, George Humble, William Freiberger, Gerald Dent, Ralph Resile, William Dean and Larry Harris. Clintonville members included Marvin Lyons, chief, Leo Kesting, Roy Abrahamson, William Schmidt, A. B. Krazke, Len Mauter and George Bothwell. Members of the Bonduel organization could not attend because of road conditions.

Pupils Weave Baskets

During Free Periods

Utilizing recess periods and time before and after school, fifth and sixth grade pupils at St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran school are learning the art of weaving and making baskets. No weaving is permitted during class periods but the pupils readily weave their 15-minute recess period to continue the work. All classes have started practice of linden hymns and these will be sung during church services in lent. The songs are being taught by the various home room instructors.

See Move to Cut Scope of Senate Investigations

Both Houses Defy President in Setting Up Barriers

BY RUBY A. BLACK

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington — Determination of the house of representatives and senate appropriations committee to cut down the scope of senate investigations is seen in their defiance of the president in prohibiting the use of employees of emergency and regular agencies by congressional appropriations committees.

After the president had stated to the press that he considered it perfectly proper for congressional investigating committees to continue the practice of many years standing of "borrowing" experts, accountants, investigators, and lawyers from existing executive agencies, the senate committee retained, in the relief appropriation bill, the "rider" adopted by the House, and the house committee wrote exactly the same rider into the independent offices appropriations bill.

Where They Get Testimony
The LaFollette committee, investigating violations of civil liberties, has been depending considerably upon employees borrowed from the national labor relations board, the WPA, and the PWA, and the Wheeler committee, investigating railroad financing, has been using men from the interstate commerce commission and the securities and exchange commission.

Secretary George B. McGinty of the ICC told the House committee that the Wheeler committee is using more than 70 ICC employees in making its study. As the NLBB, the ICC, and the SEC are covered by the independent offices bill, and the WPA is covered by the relief bill, neither could continue to lend employees to these senate committees, unless the conferees on the bill accept the O'Mahoney compromise permitting those now working for congressional committees to do so until their work is completed.

The attitude of the senators and congressmen is seen from the following comments, made in closed sessions of the two appropriations committees:

Site Comment
Representative Cliff Woodrum, D. Va., chairman of the independent offices appropriations subcommittee: "We find that such investigations are proceedings that do not ordinarily produce anything except a lot of headaches. We find further that if you put upon the body or dering the investigation the necessity of paying for it when they order it, they will be less likely to order it. Therefore, we try as far as we can to urge on our bureau and other agencies that they use pressure to resist such investigations unless they are put on a pay-as-you-go basis, because we think if that is done, they will not go so far."

Leaves of the plant already are two inches high.

Prim from the office of Theodore Dammann, secretary of state, shows. During the same period, the licenses of 56 drivers were suspended, including one from Menasha, one from Chilton and one from Neenah. Hortonville Campaign Chairman Sends Money To Red Cross

Special to Post-Crescent
Hortonville—Mrs. Roy Hough, chairman of the Red Cross drive conducted Tuesday and Wednesday forenoon in Hortonville, sent a check Wednesday afternoon for $284.82 to Red Cross Headquarters in Appleton. This money is for relief of flood sufferers.

The Hortonville high school basketball team will go to Clintonville Friday evening to play Bear Creek. The game will begin at 7:30 in the Clintonville High school gymnasium. Grade pupils absent on account of illness are: Vernon Jack, Iola Schneider, Delores Hastings, Frances Schroeder and Mary Ann Witson. L. D. Herschberger, George Akim and C. D. Aldrich attended a schoolmasters' meeting at Neenah Wednesday evening.

Postal Receipts Were $16,040 in January

Because mild weather was the rule in January, receipts at the Appleton Post office increased 103 per cent over January of 1936, according to the monthly report of Stephen D. Balliet, postmaster. The total last month was $16,040.13. A severe cold wave engulfed the city in January of 1936, and the resultant drop in receipts, the postmaster said.

Kiwanians Hear Story of Indian Wars During '76

Dr. Ralph V. Landis Discusses "Savage Saga" At Luncheon Meeting

Starvation due to depleted buffalo herds brought about the surrender of the Dakota Indians in 1876 and ended the series of skirmishes between cavalrymen and tribes, Dr. Ralph V. Landis of Lawrence college told Kiwanians at their luncheon meeting Wednesday at the Conway hotel as he discussed the "Savage Saga."

The Indians' final salute to the white men was the annihilation of General Custer's troops during the summer, he said. After this victory, the Indians moved into the Big Horn mountains but were unable to obtain enough food making surrender necessary, Dr. Landis stated. Desolate and poor until obtaining horses, the Sioux or Dakota Indians had their stamping grounds in an area from the Black Hills to the By Horn mountains, the speaker said, and wars did not start until the plainsmen invaded the sacred hunting grounds.

Tribes were able to travel 50 miles a day despite families and household goods and thus outdistanced cavalry units which usually averaged about 16 miles a day, he said. When attacked, the Indian would usually decoy the aggressor into ambush and then go on to an easy victory.

Poor Shots With Rifle
Indians were poor shots and unable to use the repeating rifle of the period to good advantage. In Custer's last stand only one out of every hundred Indians had a rifle, Dr. Landis said.

"In 1866 a treaty was made promising the Indians that white men would not invade the sacred hunting grounds of the Black Hills area but later the plainsmen started building paths and fords across the mountains. After the first skirmishes, the white men allowed the treaty to stand but people flocked to the region when gold was discovered.

"In 1876 the government decreed that an Indian off any reservation was hostile and regiments of cavalry were sent to subdue tribes. Captains Crook, Custer and Terry were unable to win pitched battles with the natives and the Indians continued to win until 1876 when they retreated to the mountains," Dr. Landis stated.

Organize Rhythm Band At Columbus School

"Rhythm is My Business" will soon become the theme song of morning classes in the kindergarten at Columbus Grade school since the organization of a regular band. Pupils, under the direction of Mrs. Mable R. Meyer, have learned to play the cymbals, drums, jingle sticks, scrapers and tamborines. Practice sessions are held each morning and the band can play about three selections.

Pupils Contribute to Flood Area Residents

All St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran school pupils are contributing to a school fund which is being raised for residents of the flood area. Focus Public Attention On Syphilis, Gonorrhea

Madison—Public attention is focused today on two diseases, commonly referred to in a whisper as the "Social Diseases." These two diseases are syphilis and gonorrhea.

The State Medical Society in its health bulletin proudly quotes the statement made recently by Dr. O. C. Wenger, Surgeon, U. S. Public Health Service, in a report to the Surgeon General of the U. S. Public Health Service. The statement quoted by the Society is: "I know of no other state that has done such good work in its Social Hygiene program."

Special Emphasis
"Special emphasis is being placed now to continue this program and to make still further advances in the reduction of the incidence of venereal diseases in Wisconsin. Hundreds of communities observed National Social Hygiene Day yesterday. While our attention is drawn to this problem, let us look into Wisconsin's record. The number of cases of syphilis in communicable form reported to the State Board of Health has been cut in half during the last 15 years. In 1920 there were 644 cases reported to the State Board of Health and in 1935 only 317 cases in communicable form were reported to the board. Gonorrhea experienced a similar decline.

To aid in this combined effort to reduce the incidence and the spread of these diseases, the president of the State Medical Society recently appointed a special committee of the Society to study the problem and to make recommendations for further action.

Proud of Record
"Wisconsin can be justly proud of her record in the great advances already made in the control of the problem of syphilis. We may look forward to further advances when society sheds her prudery concerning these diseases and treats them as she does other communicable and contagious diseases such as smallpox, diphtheria, typhoid fever and similar scourges.

"The public must appreciate the necessity of instituting effective treatment immediately following exposure, or suspected exposure. A specific drug has been discovered for the treatment of syphilis, and when this drug is used early in the disease, medical science promises a minimum of serious aftereffects."

Tax Collections 10 Per Cent More Than '36 Receipts

$257,526 of Total Levy Paid to Treasurer On Feb. 1

Tax collections up to Feb. 1 were $24,317.33 more or 10 per cent more, than the amount collected during the same period last year, according to Joseph A. Kox, city treasurer. A total of $281,848.31, about 32 per cent of the entire tax levy of $885,000, has been paid.

Total collections to Feb. 1, 1936, were $257,526.98, the city treasurer reported. The common council recently extended the tax collection period to March 1.

Tax payments are expected to show a gradual decline for the next three weeks and then increase daily until the final date when last minute taxpayers stand in line. Payment of taxes may be made daily during the regular office hours of the city treasurer at the city hall. Treasurer Kox announced today that he will keep his office open from 7 to 8:30 on Monday evening, Feb. 8 and 15, for taxpayers who are unable to call at the office during the day. The office will be closed on Monday, Feb. 22, Washington's birthday anniversary but will be open from 7 to 8:30 the following Tuesday evening.

A survey to determine the best voltage for electrical fences for cows showed that five volts impaired the animal's nerves, seven dried up her milk and thirteen were fatal.

Motion Picture Shows Will Aid Flood Sufferers

Red Cross Relief Fund Reached $5,852 Mark This Morning

The drive for funds for flood relief purposes in the Ohio and Mississippi river valleys is likely to continue for two or three more weeks, officials of Outagamie county chapter of the American Red Cross said today.

Contributions to the county fund this morning totaled $5,852.74 and continued to pour in from the city and rural districts.

The sum of $264.62 was received this morning from Hortonville, and Bear Creek sent in $40.75. Employees of the Riverside mill and the Aid Association for Lutherans also reported contributions. The appeal also has reached the younger generation and contributions have been made by Boy Scout troop 12 of the Roosevelt school, Spartan Hi-Y club and the Nickel Nook corporation of the Wilson Junior High school.

A large addition to the ever-growing flood relief fund is expected to be made through the showing of motion pictures at local theaters tomorrow night and Saturday morning. Special performances will be given at the Elite, Rio and Appleton theaters at 11 o'clock Friday night and at the Appleton at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. All proceeds will be used for flood relief.

"Flirtation Walk" will be featured at the Appleton theater at the evening performance with Joe E. Brown in "Elmer the Great" at the Saturday morning show. The Elite theater will show Paul Muni in "The Story of Louis Pasteur" Friday night while "The White Angel" will be presented at the Rio.

Seek More Stringent Law To Govern Auto Drivers

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison — First legislative steps in the movement for accident prevention on Wisconsin highways were taken Wednesday by Senator John E. Cashman, (Prog.) Denmark, member of the senate committee on highways, when he introduced a bill for a more stringent and workable driver's license law.

The bill, according to the author, includes the best points of advanced drivers' license laws in other states, and is patterned after the standard operators' license law drafted by the National Safety Council.

Senator Cashman said his bill "is the logical result of the fact, which is amply substantiated by statistics, that somewhere from 75 to 95 percent of all the accidents occurring on highways are due to the failure of the operators of motor vehicles and that a large number of these are due to a relatively few incompetent, negligent, wilfully reckless and irresponsible operators. This bill is to write into the statutes a workable plan by which persons demonstrated to be unfit to drive motor vehicles on the highways will be prevented from so doing and the accidents due to such operators thus be prevented."

Require Operators License

The measure would require that every person driving a motor vehicle shall have a license in his possession, specifies which persons are entitled to a license, and sets up definite physical and mental qualifications for licenses. It provides for the kind of examination for fitness will be given, and for revocation and suspension of licenses of those who after having been issued licenses, demonstrate themselves to be unfit.

Revocation for a period of from one to three years should be mandatory for such offenses as manslaughter, drunken driving, any felony in which a motor vehicle is used, failure to stop and render aid after an accident, fraud in obtaining a license, three convictions for reckless driving within a year, and others. Licenses would be suspended without preliminary hearing for any of the offenses for which revocation is mandatory, or for habitual violations of traffic regulations.

Minors' Licenses

Administration of the law would be with the Secretary of state, and examinations for fitness would be given by qualified local county or state traffic enforcement officers designated by the secretary of state. Licensing of minors would be conditioned on the assumption of responsibility by parents, guardians, or other responsible persons, and all the requirements of the present state law relating to financial responsibility for accidents would be retained in the new law.

Under the Cashman bill all existing licenses would be required to be renewed every three years, the first 500,000 in 1937, the next 500,000 in 1938, and the remainder in 1939. The measure is expected to win general support in the legislature, although some amendments may be asked. State officials and county traffic officers and highway experts at the annual road school here last week demanded stricter regulation of drivers' permits, and similar laws are being enacted into law in many other states, it was pointed out.

A fracas at a wedding dance at Stephensville last night resulted in the arraignment in municipal court today of Harold Clausen, route 1, Hortonville, bridegroom of only a few days standing and host at the dance, and Palmer Kendley, route 3, New London his father-in-law.

The warrant also listed Lyle Riehl, town of Center, but Mr. Riehl did not appear this morning.

Name Officers of State Farm Group

Brown County Agent President of Experimental Association

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison — J. N. Kavanagh, Brown county agricultural agent, was elected president of the Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment association at its annual meeting here late Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Kavanagh is a native of Kaukauna.

Other officers of the association chosen were S. P. Niere, Watertown, vice president, and E. D. Holden, Madison, secretary-treasurer.

The association is an organization of approximately 500 members which cooperates with the experiment stations in crop improvement work. Most of the members are growers of pedigreed grains, whose grains are certified and registered by the association and sold in every state in the United States and many foreign countries.

Mr. Kavanagh has been on the board of directors of the association since 1922, and for the past fifteen years has held an honorary life membership, conferred on him for outstanding work in the promotion of growing and disseminating of pedigreed seeds in Wisconsin.

Among the county agents in attendance at the farm and home week programs here this week are R. C. Swanson, Outagamie, George Massey, Waupaca, H. C. Baumeister, Shawano, I. J. Henry, Kewaunee, C. B. Drury, Marinette, and H. J. Weavers, Manitowish.

Commission Warns Against Locking Children in Homes

A warning to parents against leaving children alone in their homes was issued today by the state industrial commission and endorsed here by the county agents in attendance at the farm and home week programs here this week are R. C. Swanson, Outagamie, George Massey, Waupaca, H. C. Baumeister, Shawano, I. J. Henry, Kewaunee, C. B. Drury, Marinette, and H. J. Weavers, Manitowish.

Recalling fires that have resulted in the deaths of children, the commission stated in part:

"Actual playing with matches and fire is not the only danger. Many dangers exist in every home. Only too often the stove or furnace may be defective or overloaded with drafts left wide open, the chimneys or flues may be defective, the smoke pipes rusted, clothes hung too close to stoves or smoke pipes, oily waste or paint rags left in closets to ignite spontaneously, a burner leaking gas, explosive vapors escaping from an uncapped gasoline can or the current left on some electric appliance.

"It is unnatural and almost criminal to lock young children in while parents wander off to a show or to visit neighbors. It may not be humane to lock children out in winter, but it is safer than locking them in."

breaks. A radio network was set up to speed warnings.

In ever-cautious Cairo some levee patrols were transferred to the Mississippi side. "It is Cairo's back door," said an engineer, "and since the front door has been properly guarded from the Ohio we are taking the precaution of closing the back door. We are not apprehensive."

After surveying the Cairo situation, President Roosevelt's flood relief commission planned to proceed today to Evansville, Ind. Harry L. Hopkins, a member of the commission, said WPA workers would help with the cleanup job and "you may be sure we are standing by until the end."

From Cairo to Hickman, Ky., 140 coast guard boats stood ready for rescue work. In Cairo itself barges capable of holding 1,000 persons each were in line on the Mississippi levee, with gang planks down.

Inside the levees that rim the city, carloads of sandbags were in place and locomotives stood by with steam up, ready for a quick move to any spot where reinforcement might be needed.

Memphis, Tenn.—(4)—The tide of battle against record flood crests ran favorably along the upper Mississippi today but engineers cautioned that the fight to save the valley from untold disaster was not yet won.

Army engineers who are directing the nation's greatest anti-flood offensive remained confident of victory but pointed out the crests now passing Cairo, Ill., will hit hundreds of miles of burdened, untended levees before they reach the gulf some two weeks hence.

Danger lurked at every bend in the 1,000-mile sweep from Cairo to New Orleans and there was no relaxation of effort among the 120,000 pick and shovel laborers working day and night on the embankments protecting the south's most fertile farm lands.

Cairo's struggle also was far from ended, and the situation at Hickman remained critical, the worst of the river's rampage remained ahead for Millwood and Ferguson, in Arkansas, and the secondary levee system in northwest Tennessee awaited its most serious test.

Workers Hopeful

However, crest waters flowed by Cairo with full three feet of seaboard left on the city's flood defenses. The situation was considered excellent by engineers after sand bags had "quieted down." The fall of the Ohio at Paducah further cheered the embattled city, evacuated by all its population except the flood-fighters.

Some rain was forecast for today in the affected states but conditions generally remained favorable.

The Red Cross and other relief agencies reported further progress in systematizing the care of some 200,000 valley residents already forced out of their homes. Health conditions among the refugees remained encouraging.

Floodwater from a break in the Bessie Landing levee all but encircled Tiptonville and spread over adjacent thousands of acres.

Backwaters continued to harass lowland dwellers in Mississippi and Louisiana but engineers remained firm in the conviction the worst definitely will be over when the crests pass Arkansas and Tennessee.

TRY YOUR OWN SOLUTION OF A STRIKE

If the sit-down strike and its solution, or the solution of any other industrial dispute, is bothering anyone that person may indulge in healthy mental gymnastics by trying a solution of his own.

He may treat such a situation according to law; or he may treat it according to labor's hopes or expectations; or he may evolve some new theory that may be of immense benefit to mankind or be useful only to kindle a fire.

Certainly the leaders in the Lewis union know the law on the subject pretty well, probably as well as any practicing lawyer. They know that if General Motors receives its legal rights they cannot persist to idle in its plants. Their rights are limited by law to "peaceful picketing" which does not include the right of mass picketing, rioting, the hurling of stones, nor even the hurling of epithets.

So much for the law. Since it is thus written courts must so enforce it or be recreant to their trust. Here, however, one may stop and remark that the legislators have the right to make laws and the courts only the right to enforce them.

Now as to labor's expectations.—When it undertook the sit-down procedure it must have figured that it would find some vulnerable spot in the huge machine we call government that might be thrown out of gear by reason of favoritism of some official, judge, governor, sheriff or other person entrusted with authority.

But, if General Motors appeals to the law and receives the mandates from courts to which it is presently entitled, the authorities must move against the sit-downers with force of numbers. And then what? Will the strikers resist with monkey wrench and crowbar and perhaps with gun? And if they do shall the forces of the law employ methods that might pile up the shelves in the morgue and make funerals necessary?

Now we have arrived at real difficulty. And if we do not observe that the question is confused and knotty then we have missed important pages of our own history.

If lives of workers are sacrificed, however mistaken or untenable the position they have taken, the community will regret it for a long time to come. There are a great many considerations that should slow down the arm of the law in demanding its pound of flesh. They are considerations that cannot be weighed in courts but must be weighed among men. Those involved upon the wrong side from the law's standpoint are otherwise good citizens whose government has been unable to find a method satisfactory to them of composing their differences of opinions with employers. They are convinced for some reason that they are in the right. The problem we know by experience cannot be decided by scowling countenances or pounding fists on tables.

Before those who represent the law, either as petitioner or otherwise, give the word to advance they should reflect upon the fact that workers' organizations are substantially responsible in America for the long avenues of attractive homes and the warmly clad and housed families of those who live on those avenues and work for wages. Thus these organizations have played a very material part in securing something approaching justice in this great industrialized camp we call America.

The sit-down strike itself is wrong. Support can nowhere be found for it. A minority strike that closes up a plant is unusually wrong. But the General Motors situation, while it may be more easily disposed of because the tactics pursued by a minority there cannot be tolerated, nevertheless but dimly screens the major problem for America to decide: What shall be done when men go on strike in order that both sides may be treated fairly during the period of their dispute and prevented from taking undue advantage of the other while their negotiations are in progress?

Is not the conclusion forcing itself upon the public that the interests of all will be best served by closing down the plant in any majority strike so long as the safety of the public is not endangered by the closing?

The proposition to close plants in case of a major strike we know will create an uproar in many places. What right, it will be said, has anyone to close my property?

Rights, it may be answered, are defined by law in the interest of the great majority who are constantly striving both in theory and fact for justice.

The industrialist need not think he is getting so much the worst of it when his plant is closed except as his pride is injured. Actually he is often saving money by the closing. Nor should he imagine that the strikers are enjoying themselves even if they do turn an impish face and force a snicker when they pass the plant. They aren't dancing around the sitting room at home when the plant fires are out.

With both sides of such a controversy somewhat equally in pain, and more equally armed for negotiation by the procedure indicated, is it not evident that the necessary agreement of peace will be forthcoming quicker and in more just form through this procedure than otherwise?

If this procedure is an indulgence to the workers need it be so jealously withheld when we consider that nearly a century of experience has shown us the difficulty of the problem and that those involved are the same men who made Valley Forge imperishable in American history, who held the thin line of blue at Gettysburg and Antietam and whose bones lie at San Juan and Chateau-Thierry.

GETTING READY FOR THE NEXT WAR

A fund campaign with the sanction of the Bishop of Brooklyn has been started in order to provide for stricken Catholics in Spain.

The announcement is made: "The Reds of this country have done their part to win the battle in Spain. They deserve credit for their loyalty, vicious as it is. Have the Catholics done the same for the Catholics? Have they done anything at all?"

The article then reviews the plight of religion under President Azana, the chaos and anarchy that reigned before the civil war began and the murder and pillage that were tolerated by the Socialists. No doubt an excellent case can be made in this regard. The most impartial investigators on the spot, some of them even Socialists, have taken no issue against the charge of the failure of the so-called loyalist government to protect its political opponents and of the general collapse of law and order.

But America must decide very carefully the extent of its assistance to either party engaged in this bloody struggle and then resolutely pursue that policy toward all parties.

Appeals for assistance to suffering non-combatants will find sensitive soil. If the collections could be limited to the purposes outlined perhaps no harm might ensue. But can they be so restricted?

Unions of a socialist stamp in New York contributed several thousand dollars to the Reds, asserting the gift was for ambulances and the like. But how can they restrict their gift? And are not ambulances or bandages of medicines or any other sort of relief capable of being diverted?

The affair takes the country back 20 years. Sympathizers with the central European powers were sending packages of foodstuffs and the like through Scandinavian or other neutral countries. Americans went to Canada and volunteered for action. Others created ambulance corps in France. Still others sifted through the battle lines and took up guns for Germany.

All this activity upon the part of Americans had its result back here at home. It was well played up by the nations then involved in the war. It tended to make rival camps, almost rival parties, in this country. And since the allied nations had the great advantage of communication and transportation it redounded materially to their benefit.

If there is such a thing as neutrality, and if America intends to remain neutral in case this Spanish powder keg blows up, it will be best to abstain entirely from lending assistance to either side. Except as precisely the same assistance is rendered the other.

After all we have plenty of people suffering in this country without looking to Spain for somebody's wounds to bind up.

Opinions Of Others

CRANKS

An organization of cranks is proposed by Don Herold, philosophic feature writer. He wants about one hundred million to sign up in willingness to be called nuts, bugs, fanatics, cranks, on the subject of safety.

These erratics will hold converse with themselves while driving. They will say:

"Shall I dart around the car ahead of me and take a chance of hitting the car coming at me yonder? No! I'm a crank for safety. I'll keep right in line of traffic even if it slows me down a little."

"Shall I pass this truck on this hill and take a chance no car is coming at me over the brow of the hill? No! I'm a crank! I'll stay where I am for the present!"

"Shall I try to get another 1,000 miles out of these threadbare old tires? No! That would not be safe!"

We haven't fully estimated the value of the suggestion. If we could get into the heads of all motorists that personal pride and decency and gentlemanly behavior demanded the same sort of courtesy of one driving a car that is expected of one entering a church or standing in line for theater tickets, the traffic toll would be cut by a large percentage at once.—Detroit News.

Only 100 acres of national forests in Colorado were damaged by fire in 1936—the best record since 1925 when 71 acres were burned.

There are 158 national forests in 31 states and two territories.

Forty-one states have established forestry departments.

ONE fellow has suggested that the Ohio river, at the point where it is less than 100 miles from Lake Erie, be partially diverted by pumping water through aqueducts into the Lake. . . . the idea sounds a little on the silly side at first glance, but, when placed beside the project that would harness tides up in Maine and the one that would make Florida an island, it takes on a downright sensible aspect. . . . of course, fixing up the mountains of Pennsylvania where the floods get started by replacing trees, shrubbery and vegetation generally, has not been stressed to any great extent, although it is my understanding that back in the days before the green stuff was stripped away, the Ohio was a very well-behaved river. . . . after all, Louisville and Cincinnati have been established for a long time and it is doubtful whether those places would have been founded on locations where the residents had to man the lifeboats every year. . . . maybe pumping the water over the mountains will be necessary, although Lake Erie has quite a bit of water already. . . . besides, think of the extra pressure on Niagara Falls. . . . I like the trees and grass idea better. . . . reminding me that it would be indeed nice to see some trees and grass in full bloom. . . .

I Got A Kick Out Of: That story title in a current magazine, to wit, "When Love Is Lost a New Romance Can Rise From The Ashes of Heartbreak." Selections by Jimmy Lunceford's orchestra. Edna Mae Harris' showing with Noble Sissle's tunemakers. Hearing that an Appleton gal was admitted to the New London ski meet on a child's ticket when the gatekeeper took her escort's joke seriously. Learning that playground equipment has not been left outside this season to disturb residents near the McKinley school. Being informed a local lover of scotch was discovered drinking just plain soda. And then wondering what prompted the sudden change. Having a high student credit me for a style in writing while copying. Seeing Lawrence's "Light, More Light" seal at the Wriston farewell banquet, which was lighted through the local power company. —KUTZ

I got a kick out of the story by Richard C. Flatley in the Green Bay paper when, in an interview with Paul Whitman's band, he quoted the King's Men as worried about finding a song other than "Pennies From Heaven" to use in the flood district.

KUTZ EVEN INFLUENCES HER WRITING

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

THE TRAILER

A gay little house on wheels goes by: Making the curve of the road in high. Just like a robin, the summer done. Following after the warm, sweet sun.

Tomorrow, upon a mountain height. This pretty dwelling will face the night. Next day, to the summit of a stream. On a green bank it will rest and dream.

This wandering house holds gypsy hearts. Pursuing a dream when winter starts. The hands on the wheel are strong and true; Straight is the road and the skies are blue.

This house would seem strange to Grandmother. A cabin of logs was home to her! Only one thing would she recognize—The sure deep love in the driver's eyes! (Copyright, 1937)

THE UNWELCOME TENANT

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

PHYSIOLOGY VERSUS "AUTOINTOXICATION"

Fermentation and putrefaction are natural, normal features of digestion. You have to ignore physiology or shut your ears to the teachings of physiologists before you can develop "auto-intoxication." "Auto-intoxication," or, as some of the modern charlatans call it, "auto-toxicosis" is an imaginary poisoning by substances formed as by-products of fermentation or putrefaction in the intestine. It is bad for the health if you get such an obsession. Indeed many a poor gink worries himself sick over it. And many another builds himself a baffling assortment of real symptoms by constantly dosing or monkeying with diet or experimenting with bowel washes and the like.

Also many old time physicians accepted the hypothetical "auto-intoxication" as an explanation for all sorts of vague complaints they did not understand, no physician or scientific authority has educated enough to prove that such poisoning occurs in an individual who can still walk about. Some old fogies still in practice, and plenty of quacks and nostrum mongers, exploit the idea today. As long as this morbid concept is taken seriously by any considerable number of untutored victims, the phony habit will prevail. Were it not for the haunting fear of dire effects from such "poisoning" any victim of the constipation or phony habit. I should think, might readily break the habit and free himself for life by simply ceasing to interfere with nature's control of digestion.

I know the obstinacy of the layman's notions about this, and wonder, for how could he have any other ideas in view of what he has always been taught? But I know, too, how uniformly successful victims of the habit are in gaining their freedom if they can be cajoled or persuaded to resist the impulse to resort to the customary pill or other artifice for five days in succession. It takes a good deal of cajolery and persuasion—that's why I got out the booklet, "The Constipation Habit," which sets you back a dime and a stamped envelope bearing your address, but then, what do you pay per month for physio?

Here if I wanted to rub it in I might recite a list of side-effects from everyday laxatives, effects which often masquerade as chronic ailments of one kind or another, but this is still a health column and we've gone as far in that direction as is seemly. It is astonishing how unconcernedly many laymen hope themselves with drugs which may have harmful by-effects. A mother today says "When either of my children, aged three and six years, contract a cold, I immediately dose them with—" and she names a nostrum which benumbs sensation, kills pain, but has no remedial value so far as we know, and certainly produces strange results in not a few instances—edema of lips, eyelids, nose, face, swelling of tongue, hives, nausea, cyanosis. Surely no physician would advise dosing children with such stuff in any circumstances.

It is astonishing how unconcernedly many laymen hope themselves with drugs which may have harmful by-effects. A mother today says "When either of my children, aged three and six years, contract a cold, I immediately dose them with—" and she names a nostrum which benumbs sensation, kills pain, but has no remedial value so far as we know, and certainly produces strange results in not a few instances—edema of lips, eyelids, nose, face, swelling of tongue, hives, nausea, cyanosis. Surely no physician would advise dosing children with such stuff in any circumstances.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Mumps
Can a man who had mumps complicated with orchitis at the age of 25 years become the father of children? (G. A. E.)
Answer.—Yes. Rarely does such complication involve both glands.
Dew of Sahara
Please repeat the recipe and directions for the lotion you recommended for relief of excessive dryness, itching and irritation of the skin, especially after bathing. (R. W.)

Answer.—Powdered tragacanth one dram (teaspoonful); Phenol; Glycerine; Oil of Sassafras, of each 5 drops; Olive oil four ounces; Distilled water or boiled rain or snow water, enough to fill up the pint bottle. Use warm, not hot water and shake frequently to form an emulsion. Label "Dew of Sahara," and apply a few drops to the skin as often as needed.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York. Well, reading is that one-acter in the current issue of Stage, which is offered as a tenth playlet to go with Noel Coward's "Triple Trinity," those cycles of three which are known as "Tonight at 8:30."

It is supposed to be a scene between the author and Gertrude Lawrence in the actress' dressing room, and Noel suggests they honor their dear public with another curtain call.

"Dear public, my eye!" snorts Gertrude.

To which Mr. Coward replies: "Any public that pays eight-eighths for two tickets is inexpressibly dear to me. The dearer the tickets, the dearer the public."

All of this they do with a spotlight playing on them, because, as the author points out, "it is that kind of dressing room."

Finally, railing against the double-chinned dowagers who imagine themselves to be the star, Miss Lawrence yells:

"They come to the theater and applaud in the wrong places."

Noel (stiffly): "There are no wrong moments in my plays."

Incidentally, what has them on edge is that they are scheduled to attend another party, and they have been feted so much in recent weeks that Miss Lawrence fears they will get champagne poisoning.

They solve their problem finally by ditching the party in favor of a Greek hamburger joint. It is only when Coward comes through with this suggestion that Gertrude breaks down and admits he is a genius.

Someday someone will compile a history of embarrassing moments in the theater, and when they do they should reserve plenty of space for Lynn Fontanne.

As everyone knows, this actress is one of the world's best dressed women, and so it seems ironic that both of her contemporaries should have been brought about by clothes. The most hilarious of these took place in the Blackstone theater in Chicago. During the second act of "Caprice" the audience was suddenly and pleasantly startled to see a filmy, lacy underthing fluttering to the floor. It seems a strap had snapped, but Miss Fontanne, never at a loss, stepped carefully out of it and kicked it under a divan.

Her second experience occurred in Moscow, where she and Alfred Lunt tarried on a world tour several seasons ago. Attending the opera, Miss Fontanne wore only a chic, tailored suit, as the Russians don't go in for formal wear much.

Came the first act curtain and when Miss Fontanne arose, she found herself clutching wildly (and just in time) at her dress, which was of the wind-around-you variety and held by a single catch.

More embarrassing than this was a recent experience that came to Dolores Del Rio. While making a picture, she got up to dance and her skirt fell off. After she retrieved it, the blushing cameramen had to shoot the scene over again. They say Miss Del Rio, as a result of this, decided to go on a diet to gain weight. Her hips were too slim.

Your Birthday

"AQUARIUS"

If February 5 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m., from 4:30 to 6:30 p. m. and from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:30 to 11:30 a. m., from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m. and from 10:30 p. m. until midnight.

If you feel a misgiving about anything, it will be well to investigate. Your intuition regarding matters affecting you is likely to be strong this day, so do not disregard it. Your sense of touch should be sensitive also, and through it you may be saved a lot of extra work. You can be care-free, because there will be a solution for most of your problems this day. Ostentation in any form will be subjected to unkind comments, so it might be well to remember this, especially in the wearing of jewels. Do not be afraid to show you are tender-hearted, for assumed indifference will be a mistake. Refrain from any vestige of superciliousness in your social contacts. Married and engaged couples, as well as sweethearts, must be careful not to display any selfishness, if controversies are to be avoided.

If a woman and February 5 is your birthday you may be rather timid without giving evidence of it. You are probably very fastidious regarding your clothing. You have, perhaps, a great amount of personal charm. Your imagination is susceptible to suggestions, especially if you dwell on any unpleasant story you read or hear. You may love to experiment with recipes, dress fashions or with the rearranging of your hair. Anything new or novel is likely to appeal to you. Where people are concerned, you may be very changeable, liking and disliking the same person with startling quickness. Try to overcome this trait, for it might prevent your forming lasting friendships. As a public stenographer, purchasing agent, dietician, author, artist or musician you may do unusually well. Cupid most likely will prove his ability to be a good matchmaker where you are concerned.

The child born on February 5, generally is exceptionally bright. As a rule when it arrives at its majority it enters upon a brilliant career.

If a man and February 5 is your natal day, you may be given to be very dictatorial both in your home and office. This trait can cause much unhappiness, and a lack of popularity, so guard against it. As an architect, contractor, engineer,

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington.—Away from the capitol, down Pennsylvania avenue, swings the automobile carrying President Roosevelt after the inaugural address. It is a magnificent moment. Down that historic avenue have marched soldiers of major wars, and Presidents who helped fight them.

On the President's right as he begins that slow drive between walls of cheering thousands, is a filling station, done in a combination of the bungalow, and el rancho manner. A row of second-string hotels shields him from a view of the city.

White marble peace monument is at his back as he makes an elbow turn in the avenue to head toward the city and the White House. On his left, a muddy flat.

On his right are some of Washington's grubbier buildings, an acre of auto parking space, 15 cents a day. Five stories of national guard armory, once a hotel, rear up, whitewashed in the '20's, now gray and peeling. A police substation and the salvation army's bunk house head a long row of pawn shops, vacant store fronts and beer parlors. The throngs have crowded out of sight the clusters of unemployed usually taking their day.

Here an old hotel has been torn out, leaving the adjacent wall marked off in raw squares, where the rooms used to fit. Abruptly out of the mud to the left rises the windowless archives building, the first of the famous federal triangle of government structures that front on Pennsylvania. A bus station, liquor stores, dollar hotels and second hand stores continue on the right until a monument brings them to a halt. It is Benjamin Franklin. A penny saved is a penny earned, he told early day colonists.

This end of Pennsylvania avenue takes on the color of a capital thoroughfare, handsome government buildings on one side, first line hotels, stores and office buildings on the other. Monuments rise from grassy parkways at street intersections. At the treasury, built squarely across Pennsylvania avenue, the Presidential car turns left, passes between statues of General Sherman (war is hell) and Alexander Hamilton, and enters the White House grounds. President Roosevelt begins his second term.

War
Incidentally, Few, including those participating, expect much to come of that drive to cut the $991,600,000 war-mayor appropriation. The two-guns-in-every-furniture spirit has held congress ever since war became fashionable again across the two oceans.

Relief
Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, had his way again, as he often does. Weeks ago the President said $500,000,000 ought to be enough relief money to finish out the year until July 1. Hopkins held out for $750,000,000 and there was talk, unverified, that he would quit unless he got it. Now the President recommends $750,000,000.

Here and There Around World

10 MILLION LETTERS

Berlin.—(7)—Ten million letters have been carried between Germany and South America by Luft-hansa mail planes since regular trans-Atlantic service was begun by the German air monopoly in February, 1934.

Regularity of the service has produced pilots who can nonchalantly say that they have flown the Atlantic 80 or more times. In cooperation with the Condor Syndicate, of Brazil, the Luft-hansa ships have made it possible to post a letter in Germany that will be delivered in Santiago, Chile, four and a half days later.

German business men have been quick to take advantage of this service which brings their South American markets closer.

CHINA FEARS 'MONKS'
Nanking.—(7)—The shaven head, gray gown and wooden beads of the Buddhist monk or nun are no longer open sesame to the areas in the ring of fortifications which China's military authorities are throwing around the national capital.

Alarmed by reports that details of Nanking's secret defenses have been discovered and taken out of the country by apparently harmless itinerant devotees of the oriental religion of peace and inactivity, Nanking authorities have ordered a thorough going census of the 453 temples, monasteries and nunneries in the metropolitan area. Bona fide members of Buddhist clerical orders are to be registered and given identification badges.

The regulations are aimed directly at Japan, whence hundreds of genuine devotees, and allegedly some not so genuine, come to China annually on pilgrimages.

GEOLOGICAL FIND
Hornell, N. Y.—(7)—A geological discovery which may explain the deep deposits of natural gas in this section is revealed by Walter Redmond, former principal of Greenwood High school, who says a prehistoric earthquake split the earth on a line between what now are the communities of Hornell, Canisteo and the earthquake which caused the fracture would leave the region in ruins if it occurred in modern times, Redmond says.

Costume Plays Making Comeback on New York Stages, Club Is Told

TWO Hamlets, two Napoleons, and two Wagners all playing on the New York stage the same season give indication of the duplication which is one of the strange occurrences in current drama, according to Miss Gertrude Johnson, associate professor of speech at the University of Wisconsin, who spoke before Appleton branch of American Association of University Women last night in the Wettengel building.

Trends which were just beginning to show last season, such as the prevalence of women in casts, the costume play, and the biographical play, have been even more pronounced this year, said Miss Johnson, pointing to the 18 costume plays of this year, the Napoleons and Wagners, and the Poe and Keats biographies, and the play "The Women," whose cast is composed entirely of women.

Musical Show Passing Among the changes which the theater is experiencing, she mentioned the disappearance of the musical show, expressing the belief that it is largely because of the radio. Another strange thing, she said, is the series of "flops" which should not have been. She ventured the opinion that perhaps the biographical trend is too pronounced, and spoke also of the duplication which is unfortunate. She mentioned the play, "Days to Come" by the same author, producer and director as "The Children's Hour," but which failed completely, having had a run of less than a week.

"The Wingless Victory" by Maxwell Anderson was placed first on the list of this season's dramatic offerings by Miss Johnson who said it is the best play from the standpoint of writing theme, development of theme, complete acting, individual acting and direction. It is a great tragedy, she said, and in it Katherine Cullen is doing the best work of her career. Radical prejudice is Anderson's theme and he shows up the narrow Christian spirit in regard to this question, Miss Johnson pointed out. She predicted that it will be one of Anderson's high marks.

Discussing "The Eternal Road," the Reinhardt production, Miss Johnson stated that it is disappointing and does not compare in any way with Reinhardt's earlier work. There is a garishness about the setting and it is overlighted, she said, making one aware of the technique of the building as never before. Illusion is lost, she added and the effect is spotty. Played on eight different levels, it gives an enormous effect of length breadth and height this country has ever seen, she continued.

The most interesting character in a cast of over 300 persons, said Miss Johnson, is a young boy not over 14 years old whose reactions are vivid and whose voice is clear and beautiful.

Coward, Lawrence Clever Speaking of "Tonight at 8:30" with Noel Coward and Gertrude Lawrence, the speaker said that Miss Lawrence is extremely versatile and Mr. Coward is not. They are the cleverest two people one ever seen together, Miss Johnson went on, but she is decenter than he. Miss Lawrence's gamut running from tragedy to the most amazing burlesque.

That the American stage should have to import foreign actors to play its drama was deplored by the speaker as she spoke of the two Hamlets which are playing in New York with Englishmen in the leading roles.

"John Barrymore's Hamlet is still the best Hamlet," she said. "He reached that pinnacle and fell off, but he had worked hard through various stages up to that role."

She pointed out that there was a sense of unity in Barrymore's Hamlet not found in Gielgud's. She mentioned also the set, which is composed of levels, saying that one can't help but be aware that the people have to do a lot of climbing.

Smack Of Movies Turning to the plays in lighter vein, Miss Johnson said that they "have movies written all over them" and added, "You can't write plays that are plays with that screen right in front of you."

In "Stage Door" by Kaufman and Weber, illusion is impossible, said the speaker, for Margaret Sullivan, who was made by the movies for three acts tries to tell the audience that she will have nothing to do with the movies and that she will starve and die in order to remain true to the stage. Miss Johnson did not find it the howling success it is supposed to be. "Brother Rat," financed by Warner Brothers, will make a grand movie, according to Miss Johnson, but people seem to love it and find it good fun.

Buffoonery is well done in "You Can't Take It With You," Miss Johnson stated, praising highly the work of Henry Travers in the role of the grandfather. She placed Travers third in individual acting honors, rating Cornell and Burgess Meredith first and second, respectively. Other standouts in individual work are Ilka Chase in "The Women," the boy in "The Eternal Road" and Gielgud and Byton, she added.

Attitude Has Changed Miss Johnson brought out the change in attitude toward plays in recent years when she discussed "The Women," which she described as vulgar, bald, lewd, almost like the ribald comedies of the seventeenth century. She told how the New York police at one time closed the play, "Our Betters" by Somerset Maugham which she said was "milk sop compared to 'The Women'." There are a number of very fine actresses in this play, she said, and it is interesting to see 21 women playing together. Strangely enough, she added, there is not much smoking or drinking in "The Women."

In the high comedy field, "To-Varitch" is the stand-out, said Miss Johnson, adding that it is well acted, well set and the work of John Hailday is excellent. In "High Tor" by Maxwell Anderson, in which Burgess Meredith is playing, the morals are very clear, she continued, the story being of a man who wants his own little piece of land but finally realizes that he can't hold it back. The setting is gorgeous, said the speaker, and the light changes are breath-taking.

During the short business meeting preceding the program last night, announcement was made of the March meeting which will feature a talk on "Floods and Futures" by David Delo, assistant professor in geology at Lawrence college. In-

Here's Simple Way to Ease a Cold

1. Take 2 BAYER ASPIRIN tablets and drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

2. If throat is sore, crush and stir 2 BAYER ASPIRIN tablets in 1/2 glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat rawness and soreness almost instantly.

Two Bayer Aspirin Tablets—A Full Glass of Water—That's All

The modern way to ease a cold is this: Two Bayer Aspirin tablets the moment you feel a cold coming on. Then repeat, if necessary, according to instructions in the box.

At the same time, if you have a sore throat, crush and dissolve three BAYER tablets in one-third glass of water. And gargle with this mixture twice.

The Bayer Aspirin you take internally will act to combat fever, and pains which usually accompany colds. The gargle will act as a medicinal gargle to provide almost instant relief from rawness and pain. It is really marvellous; for it acts like a local anesthetic on the irritated membrane of your throat.

Try this way. Your doctor, we know, will endorse it. For it is a quick, effective means of combating a cold. Ask for Bayer Aspirin by the full name at your druggist's—not for "aspirin" alone.

Travelers To Initiate Large Class

It is expected that a large class will be initiated at the meeting of the Appleton council of the United Commercial Travelers of America Friday night at Odd Fellows hall. The degree work will be put on by the regular officers, W. E. Rollinson, senior counselor, Harold E. Helbing, junior counselor, C. G. Rumpf, secretary, Tabor Davis, chaplain; J. W. Hoffman, conductor; and Ralph N. Hubbell, page.

Following the separate business meetings of the council and the auxiliary, the latter will entertain at an informal party, the feature of which will be a skit, "The Country School," with the participants dressed in old-fashioned schoolboy and schoolgirl costumes. A lunch will be served by a committee consisting of Mrs. W. E. Wright, chairman, Mrs. Harry Tillman, Mrs. C. K. Wentworth and Mrs. Ori. Hoh.

Another $10 will go to the coffers of the Red Cross for flood relief as the result of a decision made last night at a meeting of Deborah Rehbein lodge in Odd Fellows hall to give that amount for the aid of flood sufferers. Cards were played after the business session, prizes going to Mrs. Ada Blake and Mrs. Anna Breitenfeldt.

The public is invited to the concert and there will be no admission charge.

Pays Tribute to Noted Reporter Of 20 Years Ago

Lawrence Says L. C. Probert, Unknown to Public, Among Greatest

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — If there is such a thing as anonymous fame, then Lionel C. Probert, who has just died in Los Angeles, won such a distinction.

Millions of persons read the story of the Zimmermann note just 20 years ago as it was first revealed to an astonished world by the Associated Press, but none except a few other newspaper men in the Washington office of that news association knew the author of the dispatch.

For the benefit of the generation which has been born since 1917, let it be recorded that Herr Zimmermann was the German minister to Mexico and that the German government instructed him to bring Japan and Mexico into an alliance with Germany against the United States. The incident served to fan the flames of feeling against Germany, and shortly thereafter diplomatic relations between the Washington and Berlin governments were severed.

The exact way in which the note was intercepted has never been disclosed, but an Associated Press reporter, the late E. M. Hood, was given the message by the then secretary of state, Robert Lansing. When he came to the Associated Press office, "Dick" Probert, as he was called by his colleagues, developed further information about it and presented it to the readers of American newspapers in what proved to be a worldwide sensation.

Mrs. Adin Kratzke was hostess to the Jokers Club Tuesday evening. Five hundred was played with prizes going to Mrs. Walter Maes, Mrs. Joseph Driessen and Mrs. Anna Buhr. Guests of the club were Mesdames Joseph Driessen, E. R. Garrett, Herman Bengs, Karl Miller, and Dan Wulk.

Mrs. Ed J. Fox entertained the O. O. Bridge club Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Emory Rogers received first prize and Mrs. Leonard Devaud second high.

Town of Brillion Contributes $340

Special to Post-Crescent

Forest Junction — A flood relief contribution of $340.05 from the town of Brillion was forwarded this week to the Calumet county chapter of the Red Cross at Chilton. The amount was received from the respective school districts in the township, where school board members donated their services in making a house to house solicitation. School District 7, which includes the unincorporated village of Forest Junction, topped the list with a donation of $78.35.

Local supplies of ice for the season are being packed into ice-houses here this week. The ice is being procured from a stone-quarry pond at the lime kilns at Brillion, and brought here with motor trucks. Customary local sources of supply have not been adequate for requirements.

Pollard Players to Present Lyceum Play

Pollard players will appear in "Take My Advice" in the tenth lyceum program at the Appleton High school Friday morning. Action in the play revolves about the efforts of a young professor who rescues the Weaver family from three swindlers. The production was a success on Broadway when Gene Raymond played the lead role.

Pupils Contribute For Flood Refugees

About $30 has been contributed by students at Columbus Grade school toward the school fund which will be donated to the Red Cross to aid flood refugees, according to Mrs. Blanche Moser, principal. The majority of classes have reported a 100 per cent response to the campaign.

Building Permits

One building permit was issued yesterday by the city building inspection department. It was granted to George Miller, 1207 W. Elsie street, to enclose porch, $125.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Kohler and son, John, 231 E. Franklin street, will leave about Feb. 27 to make their home in Westfield, Mass. The Kohlers have lived in Appleton for the last three years.

ENTERS FLEA OF GUILTY

Peter Willenberg, 40, 1302 S. Jefferson street, was fined $20 and costs with an alternative of 20 days in the county detention camp when he pleaded guilty of drunkenness in municipal court this morning. He indicated that he would serve the camp sentence.

Last Rites Held for Mrs. Rachel Thompson

Special to Post-Crescent

Leeman — Funeral services for Mrs. Rachel Thompson, who died Friday at her home at Navarino were conducted at 1 o'clock from the residence and at 2 o'clock from the Lutheran church at Navarino by the Rev. A. Blom, pastor of the church. Bearers were Albert Eskman, John Johnson, Oscar Nelson, Charles Larson, Edward Nelson and Albert Falk. Burial was made in the parish cemetery.

Rachel Peterson was born Jan. 12, 1862, in the town of Winchester, Winnebago county, where she lived until shortly after her marriage on May 23 1889, to Gunder Thompson, when they moved to the farm home in Navarino where she resided at the time of her death. Survivors are two daughters and three sons, Julia, Oliver and Earl of Navarino; Gertrude and Clarence, town of Maine, two sisters and three brothers, Mrs. Caroline Thompson and Mrs. Olena Helgeson, Louis and Bennie of Winchester and John of Montana; and six grandchildren.

But, apart from his writing, he was a remarkable reporter—one of the greatest of all times.

It is not with the idea of drawing invidious comparisons that I make mention of it—but, within the last 60 days, another great reporter—Arthur Brisbane—died. Millions who had read his writings knew Arthur Brisbane over a span of years, and articles about his death occupied many columns in American newspapers. Brisbane won fame. Probert won anonymity. He will be remembered only by those who, like myself, began working with him 34 years ago on the Buffalo Express and later assisted him on the Associated Press in Washington in the critical days of the European war. But his style and his aggressiveness as a news gatherer remain as a challenge to the new generation of Associated Press men who follow him.

Correspondent Asks For Criticism of This Hand

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: My favorite partner and I rarely get into arguments, since our bridge theories and styles of bidding are almost identical. But the hand I am enclosing must contain a close point because we disagreed over the proper bid. Will you kindly discuss and criticize the bidding as it actually took place?"

"As South, I admit that the contract we actually reached was bad in that there was no play for it, but I claim that it was difficult, if not impossible, to stop at a part score on our respective holdings."

South dealer.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 diamonds	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	2 spades	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

"West opened a club, and later I could find no way to avoid the loss of two trump tricks and a heart. The argument centers around my three spade bid. North claims that having bid two suits and being black in diamonds, so that I could tell his diamonds would be virtually worthless, I should have passed to two spades. My own feelings were that North's 2 diamond bid did not necessarily guarantee strength exclusively in diamonds; that it might well have been based on less in diamonds and more in other suits. I admit that after I rebid to three spades, North would have been a sassy to have passed short of game. What is your opinion of my rebid? Yours very truly, S. L."

Mr. Culbertson will discuss this hand in tomorrow's article.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

A G C'S IN MANNERS

This is the fourth column under the above heading, which teachers have asked me to print regularly each week:

1—Do you think it good manners for a couple to practically stop dancing on a crowded dance floor in order to carry on a conversation in which they are obviously very much interested?

Answer: If two people can not manage to dance and talk both at the same time, then I certainly think they should find a place off the floor somewhere to finish their conversation.

2—When two boys walk home with a girl from school, is she supposed to walk on the inside or between them?

Answer: She walks between them but a man should never walk between two girls.

3—Do you think it fair that the girls coming early to a school meeting keep best seats next to themselves for their particular friends who come in later? We feel that those who come first have a right to these best seats and we wish you would express your opinion before we bring the matter up for discussion at the next meeting.

Answer: This is one of the great abuses found in all assembly rooms where the audience is not given reserved seats. For a fairly large group to keep one extra seat is perhaps not out of the way, but to send some one ahead, as is commonly done, who spreads a coat out in each direction for six or eight who come at their leisure is an evidence of extreme lack of ap-propriety.

With such a holding he hardly could bid more than two spades over two hearts, already having shown some strength by responding two diamonds.

The real trouble with this hand seems to have been in the play. When declarer took the lead at the second trick he should have seen that there was only one chance to avoid the loss of two spades and one heart in addition to the club already conceded. His correct play was to lay down the spade ace and, when West dropped the queen, to have baled out the clubs by cashing the third round. Then he should lead a small spade. West now would be at lead and would be completely helpless. If he led the fourth round of clubs, dummy should ruff. If East overruffed, declarer could merely ditch a heart, and East would have to lead away from his heart king or back into dummy's diamonds either of which would rescue declarer from a heart!

When declarer took the lead at the second trick he should have seen that there was only one chance to avoid the loss of two spades and one heart in addition to the club already conceded. His correct play was to lay down the spade ace and, when West dropped the queen, to have baled out the clubs by cashing the third round. Then he should lead a small spade. West now would be at lead and would be completely helpless. If he led the fourth round of clubs, dummy should ruff. If East overruffed, declarer could merely ditch a heart, and East would have to lead away from his heart king or back into dummy's diamonds either of which would rescue declarer from a heart!

With such a holding he hardly could bid more than two spades over two hearts, already having shown some strength by responding two diamonds.

The real trouble with this hand seems to have been in the play. IV—TAME ELEPHANTS
After being tamed, Indian elephants are set to work of many kinds. They are powerful, and almost always gentle, beasts of burden. Brought up to a ton in weight may be placed on the back of one of them.

"Indian" Elephant Pulling Log.

Elephant take an important part in the lumber industry of India and Burma. With the help of a harness, they drag heavy logs over the ground. Sometimes they carry logs in their trunks, or rest the logs on their tusks.

Tourists in India take rides in the backs of elephants. This is an old method of "passenger transport," used by native princes and others rich enough to own tame elephants.

Circus parades are not so common nowadays as they were 20 or 30 years ago. When I was a boy, I enjoyed watching elephants march by on "circus days." I liked them best when they formed in single file, each one winding his trunk around the tail of the animal in front of him.

In recent years I have not seen a circus parade, but I have watched elephants perform under the big

School Should be First In Importance to Child

BY ANGELO PATRI

"How often should a fifteen-year-old girl be allowed to go to parties in the evening? She attends high school and gets many invitations, but her father and I think she ought not to go out evenings during the school week. She may go at the week-end, but not during the week as we fear it interrupts her studies. She thinks we are wrong."

I think the girl is wrong. School is a serious business. It requires about all the spare time a student has if he is to keep up to standard. These days there is no room anywhere for the young person whose record shows barely passing, or odd failures, or lack of effort. Business scans them with critical, cold eye; colleges say flatly, "We don't want you." High marks, a record of attention to duty and success in performing it is demanded of students. The common agreement among the elders is that any boy and girl of ordinary good sense can get a good rating from his high school. That is true. But the good sense has to be applied earnestly and steadily to make the grade. Taking a day off, easing on the hard subjects after a curtailed rest, skipping a class in order to take a nap, or to have a chat with a date, works the very mischief with school work. Steady day-by-day attention is the very least a student can do and hope to pass with any degree of credit.

Single-mindedness is necessary for success in school. The boy or girl who is interested in a social group, who is the life of the party, the leader of the stunts and the "affairs," cannot be the successful student because the time is limited and can be used just once.

Students need sleep, regularly. Going to bed at nine one night and two o'clock the next, means a broken rhythm for body and mind, and neither of them function well under that handicap. Bedtime and rising hour must be set by the clock and followed accordingly. The school year round if efficiency is to be maintained.

After the week's work is finished there comes a feeling of satisfaction and freedom that makes for deep enjoyment of whatever pleasure is afoot. There is no weariness, no worry about neglected work, no thought of having to get back early to do a bit of work that the teacher has demanded short of a complaint note to father. The road is clear for fun, and the body and mind are both ready for it. Half the joy of a party lies in having a good appetite for it, and a good week's work creates that.

Need Slim Figure for New Prints

BY ELSIE PIERCE

If you're casting furtive glances at Fashion's forecasts for spring: if the mannequins smiling at you from pictured pages have put you in a blue or in a buying mood, if you've already "Oh'd and ah'd" at advance showings and displays—then you can be sure that the whole spirit of spring has already "got" you.

Which means that you will soon be on buying bent for a new spring wardrobe. And which means that you had better be looking at your figure, and have the figure for Fashion's exacting demands.

The Command to Colors

Because things are getting better, the fashion world is gay, more vivid with color and ornamentation. That means just one thing: you've got to be in good form for it. Because splashes of color, riotous prints, vivid shades tend to make surfaces look larger and reveal contours. As for ornamentation, a gay, varicolored belt is fine when your waistline measures twenty-five or six, but it looks like a tremendous expanse encircling one "over thirty."

Bracelets on your wrist are quite the vogue, but such the trim, slender wrist dare wear them. Yes, one definitely has to have a waistline and a bustline, a suggestion of a delicate curve at the hip, no sign of a "lummy," and a faint, feminine curve "derriere."

Furthermore, jeweled ornaments are focusing the spotlight on the throat which should be beautifully molded and firm with none of the scrawny, bawled look that often comes with drastic reducing measures.

Backs are back in the limelight too—decotee evening gowns have done that—and there's nothing prettier about excess pads between shoulder blades, the dowager's "hump" causes Fashion to frown even upon duchesses and dowagers and over-developed upper arms are dated "way back when."

So You Want to Reduce
If you've permitted a heavier winter diet or indolence to do things, and not such nice things to your figure, you're probably reproaching yourself. And you want to reduce.

Well, we think that the spring styles are well worth it; but, of course, we are all for a safe and sane reducing regime by diet and exercise. We've worked out a course by diet, giving specific menus and caloric intake instructions.

My complete new booklet "Reduce by Diet" (Booklet 201) is yours for ten cents. It covers the subject thoroughly. Send for it, giving your name and full address to the Bell Library, in care of this newspaper, 247 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y. (Copyright, 1937)

WHO'S WHO SHUNS TWINS

Tuscaloosa, Ala. —Dr. R. M. Harper of the University of Alabama says that after extensive research he has been able to find no case of identical twins, both of whom are listed in the publication, Who's Who.

By Sunday night so that the last evening before school opens again can be spent quietly and happily at home. The success of a school day depends largely on what went before. If the student had a good night's rest, rose on time, followed schedule and got to school rested in mind and contented in spirit, the end is assured. It must be good.

School is the important business of Youth. Nothing should endanger its success. Everything should be done to insure it.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Father isn't around much of the time.

But no man, no matter how angelic and optimistic he may be, can make a peaceful and cheerful home if he is married to a high-tempered, nagging, fault-finding woman who is always peevish about something and taking out her bad disposition on the family. Mother is always on the spot with a wet blanket in her hand, ready for action if anything cheerful shows its head.

Besides, women are naturally more tactful than men. Virtually any wife could start a family fight if she would wave the olive branch instead of a red rag at her husband. DOROTHY DIX.

My Neighbor Says—

When ironing a garment on which there are buttons, place buttons on folded Turkish towel. The buttons will sink into the towel and the space between them will be ironed more smoothly.

When making hooked rugs do not crowd rows too closely together. You should be able to see the bur-lap between rows as you work.

Keep cloths used when polishing furniture in a covered tin or galvanized iron pan. Cloths saturated with polishing liquids stored away in closets often cause spontaneous combustion.

Instead of shelling peas, put into boiling water and let boil until pods burst open. Peas will drop to bottom and kettle and pods may be removed. (Copyright, 1937)

Need Competent Army Officers To Train Troops

Dryer Discusses Defense Problems With Veterans Of Foreign Wars

Kaukauna — Unless the government has competent officers to train them and proper equipment for them to use, it has no right to take the nation's young men in time of war, Lieutenant Colonel Olin G. Dryer told members and guests of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at an open meeting last night.

Speaking on the aims of National Defense week, Feb. 12 to 22, Dryer said that the National Defense Act was passed in 1920 to insure "universal service" in time of war, a combined effort of industry at home and men on the field.

He hit at "college pacifists who sign pledges not to fight if war is declared" and declared that "besides being absurd, the gesture was 'not very American'."

Stressing the importance of adequate training and suitable equipment, he showed the use of narrations from the World War how young men were shoved to the front with almost no experience.

"Most of their safety depends on their training," he said. "It is not fair to send them out without giving them at least that protection."

Dryer praised the R. O. T. C. units in colleges and universities throughout the nation and advocated a reduced tuition for young men who were willing to take advantage of the military learning that such programs offer.

Engineers Refuse Quotations on Plant Equipment

Object to Figures Offered By Milwaukee Contracting Company

Kaukauna — After refusing to accept quotations from the contractors on certain equipment for the sewage disposal plant being built here under the PWA program, J. W. Nemeyer, consulting engineer, left yesterday for Milwaukee with figures which he and another engineer, Harry Heck, drew up for submission to PWA authorities.

The two engineers met yesterday morning with the board of public works in the city building after the council Tuesday night expressed discontent over alleged avoidable delays in the construction of the plant and laid the fault at the feet of the building company, P. and D. General Contractors, Inc., of Milwaukee.

Nemeyer and Heck represent the Greeley-Hansen firm of consulting engineers from Chicago.

Harry McAndrews, city attorney, said yesterday the quotations from the contractors were turned down by the engineers and board of public works because they were too high.

$2,500 Involved

About 20 items of equipment carrying an expense of $2,500 are involved. McAndrews said that if the figures provided by the engineers are ratified at the PWA office in Milwaukee, the council will authorize their purchase, rejecting suggestions made by the contractors.

The revelation that members of the council are uneasy over building operations at the sewage plant came at the meeting Tuesday night when Alderman Oscar Alger, president of the board of public works, said he wasn't "getting much satisfaction out of the contractors" and that "enough men aren't being put to work."

He pointed out that the Milwaukee firm, headed by V. A. Pachalski and L. Daigalski, had accomplished only about 40 per cent of the work and taken 80 per cent of the time allotted them by the council.

Construction began last May and is scheduled for completion in the latter part of March.

At this morning's meeting, Lemoyne advised the board of public works to "order" equipment as quickly as you can" and to "hustle things along down at the scene of operations."

A clause in the contract provides that if the contractors do not finish their work within the specified time, the council may penalize them $25 a day over the deadline. The council may, however, extend the time if they find there is justifiable reason, but at Tuesday night's meeting the aldermen expressed unanimous dissatisfaction at the delay.

Young Farmers Gather Tonight

Will Meet at 7:30 at High School to Organize Permanent Group

Kaukauna — The foundation of a permanent organization may be laid tonight, when young farmers in this community gather at 7:30 in the high school to meet with F. Cavanaugh, superintendent, and Howard Gutgesell, agricultural instructor, in an open forum on farm problems and interests.

Cavanaugh will address the group on "Community Promotion" and, with Gutgesell, will encourage them to form a club and meet regularly for friendly visits and talk over their farming experiences.

About 100 invitations have been sent out to young farmers in the three counties, Brown, Calumet, and Outagamie. Cavanaugh said yesterday that if it is started at tonight's meeting, courses of study and a schedule of outside speakers may follow.

Kaukauna Freshmen Defeat Neenah Five

Kaukauna — A high-geared Kaukauna freshman team defeated the Neenah yearlings 27-12 in an after-school game here yesterday, snatching an early lead and building it up steadily in every quarter.

Alger tossed in seven baskets to lead the victorious Kaws. Hass made half of Neenah's points with two field goals and two free throws.

Rotarians Discuss Business Methods

Kaukauna — Proper business methods and ways of strengthening and protecting local establishments were objects of discussion by members of the Rotary club at a noon luncheon yesterday in Hotel Kaukauna.

The men criticized the practice of those they termed outside "racketeers" who enter cities, sponsor advertising schemes, and leave with tidy sums of money—all within a few days—and recommended that business men refuse to aid such causes.

Nemeyer, consulting engineer, left yesterday for Milwaukee with figures which he and another engineer, Harry Heck, drew up for submission to PWA authorities.

The two engineers met yesterday morning with the board of public works in the city building after the council Tuesday night expressed discontent over alleged avoidable delays in the construction of the plant and laid the fault at the feet of the building company, P. and D. General Contractors, Inc., of Milwaukee.

Nemeyer and Heck represent the Greeley-Hansen firm of consulting engineers from Chicago.

Harry McAndrews, city attorney, said yesterday the quotations from the contractors were turned down by the engineers and board of public works because they were too high.

Armies Don't Start Wars

"There is one school of thought in America that believes armies to be the cause of wars and that one of the quickest ways to insure peace is to dismiss all military organizations," Dryer said. "But armies don't start wars, they stop them. In none of America's wars has the army been the cause, but in all of them, the army brought peace."

His talk was the second on national defense given here this week. Helm Hussner of Appleton, captain of the ordinance reserves, talked before the American Legion Tuesday night and recommended that the reserve officers' forces be increased so that there would be sufficient men to train recruits immediately should a war break out.

He emphasized the need for teaming the industrial side of preparedness up with the militaristic so that as fast as men were marshaled and trained, there would be equipment awaiting them.

Young Farmers Gather Tonight

Will Meet at 7:30 at High School to Organize Permanent Group

Kaukauna — The foundation of a permanent organization may be laid tonight, when young farmers in this community gather at 7:30 in the high school to meet with F. Cavanaugh, superintendent, and Howard Gutgesell, agricultural instructor, in an open forum on farm problems and interests.

Cavanaugh will address the group on "Community Promotion" and, with Gutgesell, will encourage them to form a club and meet regularly for friendly visits and talk over their farming experiences.

About 100 invitations have been sent out to young farmers in the three counties, Brown, Calumet, and Outagamie. Cavanaugh said yesterday that if it is started at tonight's meeting, courses of study and a schedule of outside speakers may follow.

Kaukauna Freshmen Defeat Neenah Five

Kaukauna — A high-geared Kaukauna freshman team defeated the Neenah yearlings 27-12 in an after-school game here yesterday, snatching an early lead and building it up steadily in every quarter.

Alger tossed in seven baskets to lead the victorious Kaws. Hass made half of Neenah's points with two field goals and two free throws.

OPEN NEW THEATER

Kaukauna — The new north side theater opened today with a matinee at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The building which was started last November was completed yesterday. The theater seats about 500.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. Don Anderson is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6-30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

Milder Weather Blamed As Book Withdrawals Drop

Kaukauna — A decrease of 659 in the number of books circulated from the public library last month compared to January of 1936 is noted in the report submitted this week by Miss Bernice Happer, librarian, to the library board.

Last winter's sustained below-zero wave may have kept more people indoors and been responsible for the fact that they borrowed 3,926 books during January while this year their demands reached only 3,267, the librarian said.

The library released 187 more books last month than in December, however.

In last month's total, 1,013 were drawn by children and 2,254 by adults. An average of 130 books were taken out each day, 126 were loaned to schools, 148 to rural residents, and 62 new names appeared on the register.

Patrons and schools in rural areas are being loaned more books than ever before, Miss Happer reported, because of the $200 voted the library for that purpose by the Outagamie county board at a meeting last fall.

The library will use the fund for buying new juvenile and fiction books. Shipments of 131 new books have been received by the library which now has 6,689 volumes on its shelves.

Sons of Vets to Present Comedy

"Take My Advice" Will be Staged at Civic Auditorium

Kaukauna — "Take My Advice," the story of a young professor who uses psychology to rescue a gullible family from swindlers, will be presented at 8:15 tomorrow night in the Civic auditorium by the Polard Players of New York under the sponsorship of the Sons of American Legion.

The three-act comedy will have only one showing here. Tickets for the play are being sold by the sponsors, an organization with about 80 members.

The following men from the American Legion are on the committee for arrangements: George Schubring, chairman; Dr. G. J. Flanagan, Joseph McCarty, Alfred Wagnitz, Olin Dryer, Arthur Schubring, Harry Treptow, Sr., John Vanden Broek, and David Egan.

Cavanaugh, Teachers At School Meeting

Kaukauna — Superintendent J. F. Cavanaugh and four high school instructors attended the annual meeting of the Fox River Valley Schoolmasters' club last night in Neenah.

Besides Cavanaugh Howard Gutgesell, Thomas Nolan, Clarence Kriesa, and James Lang were present.

The world's potential shale oil production is estimated at 300,000,000,000 barrels.

The Woman's Benefit Association will hold a card party tomorrow.

THOXINE

Hollywood News And Gossip By Roblin Coon

Hollywood — Screen and radio, those supposed natural enemies, are lying down together, lion and lamb fashion, and the dog-eat-dog prospect appears less forbidding.

But this is something the movie powers had better investigate: three tourists came to town last week and each separately sneered at the idea of visiting a movie studio. What he wanted, each said was to attend a Jack Benny broadcast.

Many a personal pang was felt at the passing of Richard Boleslawski aside from Hollywood's industrial regret at the loss of a talented director.

"Boles" was such a genial, happy and down-to-earth fellow, like a good-natured boy with his expansive grin, that one seldom thought back to his days of Hollywood anguish. . . . Not even to that particular day, when, in poverty's extremity, he returned inconspicuously to the studio where once he had been a power and asked for work, any kind of work—and didn't get it, not even a job as a gardener's helper. . . .

When he landed again, he was kept so busy making pictures that he had no time for vacations. . . . But he still had time for the "little people" of the lots, the workers who "don't matter." . . . Way for a Lancer!

Curley Twiford trains rats, and has 150 other animals—trained—at his command.

On the "Seventh Heaven" set, however, it was Twiford's rats, three in number, that held the center.

from Hass'. He was tied with G. Patterson, a member of the same team, for high game. They rolled 168.

Toonen's (3) 419 405 425-1,249
Hass' (1) 334 377 378-1,169
Pantry (2) 398 374 350-1,123
Rennicke's (1) 389 358 437-1,184

ter of the stage, which to them was James Stewart's face.

Stewart was doing those trench sequences. All the rats had to do to earn their $10 a day each was to scurry along damp dugout rafters. over Stewart's face, thence to a crude table to gorge on stale cheese.

How Stewart felt about the procedure I did not ascertain, but it was obvious that Curley had an artistic interest in the rats' behavior. He admitted that he has had anxious moments with them. Although the rats are trained, primitive instincts are not so easily forgotten that they would disdain to nibble at an expensive film actor's cheek.

Curley always guards against this reversion to type by providing a more tempting bait, such as the cheese above noted. He figures that cheese, in this contingency, makes the world safe for actors—doubtless because of the traditional preference of rodents for cheese to ham.

Such little things can defeat a screen writer's hopes. Two youngsters wrote a film musical, and for no especial reason placed it in a war-time setting.

BUST THAT COLD WIDE OPEN

Don't Merely Check It With Half-Way Measures!

Deal with a cold in earnest. Deal with it in seriousness.

A cold is too fraught with danger to be taken lightly. Many a case of flu and pneumonia has started with nothing more than a "common cold."

Treat a cold for what it is—an internal infection. Therefore, internal treatment.

Treat a cold with a preparation made for colds and not a "cure-all."

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is your answer to a cold.

It is a cold tablet, made expressly for the treatment of colds and not for all kinds of ailments.

It is internal in effect and it does four important things.

First, it opens the bowels, an important step in overcoming a cold.

Second, it checks the infection in the system, a vital step.

Third, it relieves the headache and fever.

Fourth, it tones the system and helps fortify against further attack.

These are the four effects a cold calls for and in Bromo Quinine you get them all in the form of a single tablet.

Bromo Quinine tablets now come sugar-coated as well as plain. The sugar-coated are exactly the same as the regular, except that the tablets are coated with sugar for palatability.

Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is safe to take. It has been proven by more than 40 years of use.

When you feel a cold coming on—don't wait—don't procrastinate—but go right to your druggist and get a package of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine.

Crippled Vikings Take on Monmouth and Knox

Burton Lost to Squad; Osen May Be Unable to Play

Lawrence Cagers Play at Galesburg Friday, Monmouth on Saturday

WITH Cliff Burton, star forward, remaining at home on crutches, and with Cliff Osen, the other forward, bothered a bit by a foot injury, Lawrence college basketball team will leave tonight for Galesburg, Ill., where it will take up residence for two days. On Friday evening it will meet Monmouth college at Monmouth, Ill., and on Saturday night will meet Knox college at Galesburg. The towns are only a few miles apart.

Burton has been on the injured list since last Friday when he turned up with a foot infection and was hustled to the infirmary where he was under doctor's care until Tuesday. He then was allowed to go home but is hobbling about on crutches and can't make the trip.

Osen was hurt Tuesday night in scrimmage when someone stepped on his heel injuring his arch. The bruise hasn't shunted off to the doctor but unless it heals by Friday night it may bother him.

The loss of Burton is a real jolt to the Vikings for they need his height and general all-around play, especially if they happen to run up against a couple big fellows. Benjamins and Jackson probably will see service in Burton's berth but both lack experience.

Both games will count in Midwest conference play and Coach Art Denney wants wins the worst way to bolster the Viking rating. Although the Vikings have a good record against all opponents their Midwest rating shows one win and two defeats.

Monmouth is considered the stronger of the two teams. The Scots showed a lot of ability against Carleton at Carleton and Denney is afraid his team can't take them. However he'll play to get control of the ball and hang onto it as much as possible.

Knox hasn't been doing so well this season and the Vikings should be able to cop.

BALL STARS PLAY, BUT CALL IT WORK AT MIAMI

This quintet of big league baseball stars gathered on the warm sands at Miami Beach, Fla., for a brisk workout to reduce bulging waistlines, but when the photographer arrived they were loitering over a balcony railing. Left to right: Goose Goslin and Hank Greenberg of the Detroit Tigers; Dizzy Dean of the St. Louis Cardinals; Lynn Lary of the Cleveland Indians, and Jimmie Fox of the Boston Red Sox. Fight Promoters in Battle With Managers of Boxers in Arranging for Title Bout

NEW YORK—(P)—What started out as a proposal for a Jim Braddock-Joe Louis heavyweight championship fight in Chicago, looked very much like a free-for-all feud between promoters and managers of the principals today, while all hands marked time on the proposition.

In New York, Madison Square Garden Promoter Jimmy Johnston and Braddock's manager Joe Gould, long have been in the name-calling stage. Now, in Chicago, Louis' managers have taken to berating Mike Jacobs, who promotes the Brown Bomber's battles.

Meantime, the $500,000 offer from Sheldon Clark, Chicago sportsman, for Braddock to defend his crown against Louis at Soldiers' Field in June was waiting for signatures. Gould was due in Chicago some time this week as he explained, to sign the papers, but Jacobs, who has Louis under contract, planned a more waiting game.

Asks Return of Forfeit
Gould was scheduled to ask the New York State Athletic commission yesterday for return of the $5,000 forfeit Braddock posted as evidence of his intention to fight Max Schmeling for the championship in Madison Square Garden's bowl on June 3. The shrewd pilot of the titleholder did not appear, however, and left everyone guessing as to his intentions.

Jacobs returning from Chicago where he heard Clark's proposition, said he was looking into the matter thoroughly. This delay apparently didn't please Julian Black of Louis' managerial staff. He accused Jacobs of "stalling" and of "protecting" Schmeling, whom Jacobs also has signed for a title go.

And if Jacobs doesn't bring out his fountain pen soon and sign Louis for the title, Black threatened, he and his co-manager, John

Roxborough would sign for the go "over Jacobs' head."

"Max Could Go On"
The state athletic commission got around to several matters at yesterday's session. It heard Referee Arthur Donovan explain he was sure Max Baer could have continued in his fight with Louis, instead of being counted out. And indicated it would bar Baer from a fight with Bob Pastor in March in the Garden. The commission also disclosed it had wanted to talk with Jimmy Johnston, Jr., brother of the Garden promoter and manager of Pastor, who did not appear. Although the desire was not explained, the general belief was the commission wants to hear what Johnston has to say about Pastor's ten-round bicycling act in his bout with Joe Louis last week. The commission wound up by mapping plans for a new rule whereby any fighter knocked down three times in one round would be automatically disqualified from the match.

The plan came as the result of the death of Tony Marino, Pittsburgh bantamweight, after a fight last Saturday night in which he was floored five times.

Buivid Takes Up Track For More Athletic Fame
Milwaukee—(P)—A senior fast fading out of the collegiate picture Ray (Buzz) Buivid, Marquette university's all-America football halfback, was back in the harness today with the track team.

Track Coach Conrad M. Jennings who is shy on weight material this season, had Buivid take his first fling at varsity shotputting yesterday. He heaved the 16-pound ball 41 feet, qualifying him for dual competition. He will appear against the University of Chicago tomorrow night in Chicago.

Buivid is holder of the Marquette record in the discus throw.

Irish Down Purdue in 2nd Straight Setback

CHICAGO—(P)—For the first time in a long while Purdue's Boilermakers looked back today on two consecutive basketball defeats.

The co-defenders with Indiana of the Big Ten title who dropped a one point decision to Illinois nearly three weeks ago in their last previous start, took a 47 to 40 beating from Notre Dame's rejuvenated Irish at South Bend last night. Notre Dame held Jewell Young Purdue's Big Ten individual scoring leader, to eight points while its own star, Johnny Moor led the victorious attack with 15 points.

Iowa returned to action by choking off a late North Dakota rally to defeat the Bison, 35 to 30, at Iowa City.

Women's Rows in Golf Meets Gone, Says Star

Coral Gables, Fla.—(P)—Pretty Jean Bauer looked back over eight years of tournament play today and said sulking and clubhouse rows slowly but surely are disappearing from women's golf.

"We're learning to take the game for what it is," said the Providence, R. I., miss. "Time was when the girls would quit in the middle of a match because of the way their opponents acted."

"Some few still do, but there is a better spirit among women golfers wherever you go than when I started to play."

Miss Bauer, runner-up last year to Patty Berg in the Miami Biltmore Women's tournament, eked out a one up victory over Mrs. A. U. Rodney of New York yesterday in the first match play round of the 1937 competition.

Miss Berg, medalist again this year, tackled Dorothy Kirby, 17-year-old Atlanta star today.

Flood Doesn't Alter Plans For Annual Kentucky Derby

BY ORLO ROBERTSON
NEW YORK—(P)—It won't be long until the three-year-old aces jog out of winter quarters to start training for the 63rd running of the $50,000 Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs on May 8.

Many of the stars will be galloping before the entries are announced officially early in March. Because of the Ohio river flood, which stood several feet deep over the Downs, the closing date for the entries was moved back from Feb. 15 to March 1. Otherwise the flood has not altered plans for the classic.

In Tennessee and Kentucky, not many miles from where the Ohio reached unprecedented heights, are quartered several outstanding candidates. The others are stabled in almost every section of the country. Most of them are under saddle daily for short jogs around indoor tracks or outdoors when weather permits.

Reaping Reward and Case Ace from Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Milky Way farm, are at Fulaski, Tenn., E. R. Bradley's Brooklyn, rated the best of the Kentucky prospects since Blue Larkspur, is receiving preliminary training at his owner's Idle Hour farm near Lexington. Not far away are Warren Wright's two eligibles—Privileged and Golsun.

Chief of the eastern hopefuls is J. H. Louchheim's Pompon, is stabled in Maryland's Worthington valley. Within a few weeks, the 1936 two-year old champion will be shipped to Oaklawn Park, at Hot Springs, Ark., to complete training. In the south are DeWitt Pages Maedic, winner of five straight stakes at Saratoga last summer, and Marshall Field's Sir Darnon and Charing Cross.

Kimberly High to Meet Wrightstown on Friday

Kimberly—The Kimberly high school cagers will play Wrightstown in a Little Nine conference game Friday evening at the clubhouse. Last Friday the Red Devils were defeated 12 to 11 by Brillion in one of the most exciting games of the season.

The Kimberly squad has won two games out of six tries. Wrightstown High, still without a win, expect to make it plenty tough for the Kimberly men. Kimberly's lineup will include: Krueger, Weyenberg, La-Roege, Vanden Boogaard, Barrand, Boesackers, Van Dyke, Valentine and Kobs.

Weyauwega beat Amherst, 28 to 13, last week.

Wauwaga, the second place team in the circuit, will go to Amherst for its weekly contest and should come away winner. Wauwaga is the only team with any chance of overhauling Marion. The Potato Diggers have suffered only one league defeat, that at the hands of Marion.

Public Works Administration awards Westinghouse world's largest single order for refrigerators

When the Government buys refrigerators for its PWA slum clearance and low-rent housing projects, low operating cost is essential. Bids are based on initial price PLUS cost of electricity for ten years. On that basis, Westinghouse won the order for 16,697 refrigerators against other leading makes. Due to the Westinghouse Sealed-in Mechanism, thick Super-sealed Insulation, and other features for increased operating efficiency, Westinghouse could submit a lower over-all bid, even though others quoted lower initial prices for refrigerators... CONWAY HOTEL bowlers walked off with all individual and team honors in the Industrial league games on Arcade alleys last night. Clyde Schwerbel tipped a 221 for high individual game, John Tornow a 621 count for high individual series and the team scores of 1,003 and 2,962 topped other clubs. The Conway turned back Pond Sports in three straight games. Joe Shields had a 198 game and 534 series and Bent a 198 game for Ponds.

Atlas bowlers won two games from the Woolen Mills as Louis Gebheim toppled a 195 game and 526 series. Wally Ruffke hit a 192 game and 517 series to pace the Woolens. Post-Crescent bowlers took it on the chin in three straight games with the Wire Works. Herman Strutz shot a 576 series and Demand turned in a 215 game to lead the Wires, while Irv Weiss compiled a 510 and C. Kleiber a 189 game for the Post-Crescents.

Clicking behind Bud Becker's 186 game and 504 series and Oswald's 187 game, the Appleton Machine company dumped the Tuttle Press squad out of first place in a 2-game victory. Wally Gresenz hit a 201 game and 561 total to lead the Press squad. Standards topped Wadhams in three games as V. Schmidt tipped a 197 game and 548 series. Wadhams top scores were Bob Kranhold's 190 game and 521 series.

Leedsyong cracked counts of 201 and 550 pins to lead Tuttle Cubs in a triple win over Company D. The Company D scoring was led by Strebel with a 146 game and 416 series. Powers won three games on forfeit by the Both Oil company and Phones won three on forfeit by the Krueger Printers. Mike Sakallaris tipped a 181 game and 508 series for the Powers and Roy Dagnault's 181 and 490 counts were high for the Phones.

FRIDAY'S GAMES

Menasha at Clintonville.
Kaukauna at Neenah.
New London at Shawano.

With West DePere, leader in the Northwestern Wisconsin conference, drawing a league bye, two more or less "naturals" will hold interest of conference followers.
The most important contest will have New London invading Shawano for a game that always draws blood and often a call for the cops because of the rivalry between the towns. Shawano is in second place while New London is near the bottom and therefore the edge goes to the Indians. However, New London has shown inclinations to rise to the heights and followers of the team are hoping Friday is one of the occasions.
Another "natural" will bring together Kaukauna at Neenah. The teams are tied for third and fourth places in the standings and of course there's the desire to move up a few points. The Kaws were thoroughly chastised by their defeat at the hands of St. John Monday and will be out for a win while Neenah will be attempting to forget the defeat at the hands of Menasha last Friday.
In the other game Menasha goes to Clintonville and should win easily.

FRIDAY'S GAMES EASTERN DIVISION

Kimberly at Wrightstown.
Denmark at Brillion.
Reedsville at Hilbert.

WESTERN DIVISION

Freedom at Shiocton.
Hortonville at Bear Creek.
Seymour at Winneconne.

LITTLE NINE conference leaders will have more than their hands full in Friday night's games although Seymour holds its certain of remaining in front in the Western division regardless of the evening's outcome.
The feature game is in the Eastern division with Denmark, defeated last week by Reedsville, playing at Brillion. Brillion is tied with the Danes for first place. With the advantage that comes from having the home crowd cheering it on and from playing in its own hall, Brillion is given an even chance of downing Denmark. However, if the Denmark boys stay in school Friday afternoon and don't skip off to Green Bay for a show, they'll probably have their first string lineup intact and should make a pretty fair showing.

In the Western division Seymour's invasion of Winneconne may produce an upset. Seymour holds a 2-game lead in standings but if Winneconne can knock it down a notch anything might happen before the end of the season. Winneconne has possibilities and the unbeatable legend surrounding Seymour is gone. It should be a great game.

Other games in the circuit don't hold so much interest. In the Eastern division Kimberly goes to Wrightstown and should cope easily, while Reedsville will hang up a win at Hilbert.

In the Western division's other games Hortonville invades Bear Creek's floor, the Clintonville armory, with the outcome a tossup, while Freedom goes to Shiocton with the latter favored.

FRIDAY'S GAMES

St. Mary, Oshkosh at Lourdes.
St. Norbert at St. Peter.
St. John at St. Mary, Menasha.

St. John Catholic High school basketball team will attempt to improve its second place rating in the Fox River Valley Catholic conference Friday evening when it invades Menasha at St. Mary gymnasium. If the Chuteurs can stop the Menashans they have hopes of taking St. Norbert, the leader, over the bumps next week at Little Chute.

When St. John and St. Mary clashed earlier in the season at Little Chute, the Dutchmen had a great evening and won handily. Now, however, the Menashans are improved and they aim to make it a much closer battle. The Dutchmen feel pretty good about their chances for they recently toppled Kaukauna which is a pretty neat accomplishment in any league.

In the other league game Friday night St. Norbert will play at St. Peter, Oshkosh. The West DePere team is the heavy favorite but St. Peter may cause an upset with the home floor advantage.

St. Mary, Oshkosh, will go to Lourdes, Marinette, for a non-conference game.

Phillies Pitcher Is Hero in Flood Area

Wynne, Ark.—(P)—Harry (Iron Man) Kelley, one of the star hurlers of the Philadelphia Athletics is a Mississippi flood hero.

The big right-hander, who won 16 games last year before appendicitis felled him late in the season, is a resident of the flooded St. Francis river section and his two speedboats have chugged out on the high waters on many errands of mercy.

Kelley has blisters all over both hands and he's weary for sleep, but he's still running his rescue boats—day and night.

"It is awful," he said. "It isn't so tough navigating the open spaces but when you try to pilot a boat through the woods at night—look out for that curve ball. To tell you the truth, I was mighty scared the other night when our makeshift barge (propelled by outboard motors) hung up in some trees. But it's a well-learned to rescue some poor devil—tired, hungry and half-frozen."

Kelley said he had planned to start conditioning at Hot Springs but would not leave his home and the flooded area until the crisis passed.

Principal Olin G. Dryer announced today. These teams represent the strongest Class B squads in Northwestern Wisconsin.

The Milwaukee bowler, who won the individual match title from Otto Stein of St. Louis, retired undefeated.

Tubbs Likely for Iowa Appointment

His Selection as Head Football Coach Believed Near

Iowa City, Ia.—(P)—Appointment of Irv Tubbs as University of Iowa head football coach was believed near today as the athletic board met with the Miami, Florida coach and Arthur (Dutch) Bergman of Catholic University.

Tubbs, the board favorite since the withdrawal of Matty Bell early this week, apparently had adequate support to obtain the appointment although there was a possibility that a minority group opposing his selection might cause the board to postpone action.

The minority bloc, it was said, would ask the board to delay the appointment until additional coaches could be interviewed.

The Miami coach arrived in Cedar Rapids last night after flying to Chicago, while Bergman was due this morning from Washington. Both men were to meet with the board at a noon luncheon session.

Tubbs, Bergman, and Bell were invited to come here for interviews Sunday.

Bergman, regarded as the "dark horse" candidate when the three men were named, still rated an "outside chance" before the interview.

Four Pay Fines; Two File Appeal In Gambling Case

150 Crowd Courtroom to Hear Trial of Six Ac- cused of Gambling

New London—Six New London men were found guilty of gambling in a tavern here the night of Friday, Jan. 22, by Police Justice F. A. Archibald after hearing testimony for four hours yesterday before nearly 150 persons who jammed the city council chambers in the city hall.

The case was heard by Archibald when Justice Soren Johnson of Waupaca, who was called in on affidavits of prejudice by the defendants, refused to preside on the ground that he was without jurisdiction.

E. J. Freiburger, chairman of the New London fire police commission, Gordon Meiklejohn, Henry and Alfred Worm paid fines of $5 and costs of $1.85.

Charles H. Putnam, city attorney and one of the defendants, refused to pay the fine and filed a notice of appeal to the Waupaca circuit court for himself and for Frank Shumacher, another defendant in the case. They were released on $100 bond and given the privilege to withdraw the notice of appeal.

The trial of Len Traumbauer, who is charged with permitting gambling in his place of business, was set for Monday, Feb. 8, at the city hall at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The case was prosecuted by Walter Melchoir who was appointed assistant city attorney for the occasion by Giles H. Putnam on request of the chief of police, Putnam acted as his own counsel and Francis Werner was the attorney for the other defendants.

The city chief witnesses Allan Burns, parole violator who pleaded guilty when first arraigned in court on the charge, and Al Stern and Clayton Holmes, night police officers who conducted the raid.

Burns testified he entered the card game at Traumbauer's Club and paid $3 for chips to get into the game. He named Gordon Meiklejohn banker in the game. After the raid Meiklejohn repaid him the $3, he said, which represented about the estimated amount he held at the time.

The chips and cards were taken up by the night officers on the raid and introduced to the court as evidence. Both officers testified they found the group around a table in a back room with cards in their hands and chips on the table but they saw no money or actual playing.

Putnam and Werner moved for dismissal of the case because the plaintiff had failed to prove a game was in progress, but Judge Archibald denied the motions.

The motion for dismissal also contended that the court had no jurisdiction since it had previously accepted the charge of prejudice and granted a change of venue; that there had been insufficient evidence introduced to warrant conviction or to establish the case, and that section 3 of ordinance 4, and under which they were prosecuted, contained no stipulation as to poker playing.

Melchoir contended that court had jurisdiction because the application for a change of venue was improper. The defendants claimed the court approved the move by accepting the applications and therefore had no right to preside.

The acting city attorney pointed out section 3 of the ordinance referred to other sections which included gambling with cards and emphasized that if the city ordinance did not sufficiently cover the case the more serious state laws could be invoked.

Putnam said he would fight the case, in higher courts if necessary, because he felt he had violated no ordinance of the city.

Johnson refused to sit at the hearing because, he said, there can be no change of venue in a civil action arising from a city ordinance, only a criminal or quasi

Urges Statewide Radio System to Fight Crime

Special to Post-Crescent

Fremont — "A Wisconsin Radio Intelligence department as a preventive and remedial agency would greatly expedite apprehension of criminals and promotion of highway safety, public peace and public welfare," declared Assemblyman Alvin A. Handrick, Waupaca county, in his initial appearance on the 1937 Legislative series of state capital broadcasts Wednesday.

"The coordinated Waupaca-Winnipeg-Fond du Lac-Outagamie county radio patrol system would dovetail nicely in the proposed statewide system," Handrick said. He explained the four county radio squad car system in operation.

Five to 15 minutes after a crime had been committed every sheriff and police office in the state would be given all available facts to aid in apprehension of the criminal, the speaker pointed out. Recent speedy arrest of "Frenchy" Benoit, Michigan state policeman murderer, through use of the Michigan police radio system, and Ohio's coordinated state-wide system, of inestimable value in the flood crisis, were cited as strong arguments for the bill.

"The proposed legislation provides for an office with airport facilities centrally located in the state, eight short wave radio broadcasting stations located to give state-wide coverage, and cooperation with local law enforcement agencies, which shall purchase and maintain radio receivers for offices and highway traffic patrolmen," Handrick continued. Net cost purchases could be made from the state bureau of purchases.

Cooperation would be extended to include the conservation department, state fire marshal, highway department, other states and federal bureaus. Priority calls on all telephone and telegraph lines, use of state-owned long wave broadcasting stations and laboratories and equipment would be provided also.

Employment of scientifically trained state employees, calls upon university instructors or lecturers on criminal apprehension, identification, and highway safety, and establishment of ballistics and fingerprint identification divisions would be supplied, too.

"The radio intelligence department would not be used either directly or indirectly in industrial or labor disputes or strikes," the speaker said, "and all employees, except the state director appointed by the governor with confirmation by the senate, would come under civil service and the state workmen's compensation law."

The Ladies Aid society of St. Paul Lutheran church entertained at an open card party Tuesday evening at Hotel Knokke. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Zuehlke and Albert Hahn were winners of the prizes at bridge. Albert Schroeder, Arthur Glock and Mrs. Mary M. Zuehlke were awarded the prizes at schafkopf and Mrs. Arthur Schwartz, Miss Esther Schroeder and Edgar Hanchel won at five hundred at the affair for which 30 tables were in play.

Salaries of City Officials Raised By Neenah Council

N. Commercial Street Paving Project Submitted For Final WPA Action

Neenah — "Happy days are here again" for employees of the city of Neenah. Restoration of a voluntary wage cut taken by city officials and members of the police and fire departments in 1932 was effected by passage of ordinances fixing the wages for officials elected or appointed to office during the ensuing year, at a meeting of the common council in the council chamber of the city hall last evening.

William Schmidt, Jr., chairman of the committee on public improvements, reported the N. Commercial street paving project had been submitted for final approval at WPA headquarters and the outlook for federal aid was favorable. The cost of improving the main thoroughfare is estimated at $40,000 with $15,000 being paid by federal funds for labor. Light poles are to be removed by the Wisconsin-Michigan Power Co., by April 1, and work is expected to be started in about a month.

Table Resolution
A resolution to elect Neenah supervisors on the Winnebago county board for a term of two years was tabled after an informal vote. The aldermen declared better service to the city would result if representatives served two years instead of the customary one. A snag was struck when it was learned the ruling would not become effective in two city wards until April 1938 in order to have a "carry over" on the board. Aldermen Carl E. Loehning and Schmidt voted against adoption when the informal vote was taken.

The city plan commission recommended a special building permit be granted to S. K. Seiber for construction of an apartment house at the corner of Spruce street and Higgins avenue. A hearing will be held before final action is taken. The structure would be two stories high and include four apartments.

List Salaries
Mayor Edwin A. Kalfahs declared no slight was intended in the matter of the city treasurer's salary, which was not increased. He explained that state statutes prohibited such an action. Following are the salaries effective May 1, 1937 as compared with the previous level:

Aldermen, yearly, raised from $125 to $150, city engineer, yearly, raised from $2,160 to $2,400, city clerk, yearly, including services as secretary of committee on public improvements, secretary and clerk of water works and member of board of review, raised from $2,350 to $2,600, city attorney, yearly, raised from $1,820 to $1,920, city physician, yearly, raised from $860 to $1,200 street commissioner, yearly, raised from $1,620 to $1,920, assessor, per day of service to adjournment of board of review, all service after said adjournment subject to council sanction, $5; sealer of weights and measures, monthly, raised from $20 to $25.

Equalize Departments
Heretofore salaries of policemen have been $5 higher than that of firemen. The ordinance passed last evening equalizes the earnings. Old Type of Secondary Education Cannot be Justified, Teachers Told

Neenah — What is meant by the words— curriculum, attitude, integration? Can we agree on a definition of each of these words? Shall secondary education be provided at public expense for all or for a limited number? Shall it seek to retain all pupils in school or transfer some to other agencies that would serve better their probable future needs? Is it an institution for the welfare and progress of the individual or of society? Is it to provide a common curriculum for all students or a differentiated curriculum to meet individual needs? Shall it include vocational training or shall it be restricted to general education?

These were some of the questions discussed at the meeting of the Fox River Valley Schoolmasters Club at the Valley Inn Wednesday evening as "Ten Great Issues Confronting Secondary Education" were considered for five minutes by ten educators.

10 Educators Speak
H. S. Bonar, superintendent of schools, Manitowish, H. P. Nelson, State Teachers College, Oshkosh; H. H. Helble, Appleton High school principal, W. P. Clark, Oshkosh High school, Herb Helwig, Appleton Vocational School director, Harvey Leaman, Neenah High school, W. P. Goodrich, superintendent, Fond du Lac High school, Dr. R. B. Thiel, Lawrence college, Silas Evans, president, Ripon college, Forest Polk, president, Oshkosh, State Teachers college were each given five minutes on one of the ten issues assigned them after which open discussion was allowed.

Shall secondary education be provided at public expense for all students or for a limited number, was discussed by Mr. Bonar who started his discussion with the assumption that secondary education reaches the junior and senior high school students. He contended that we must designate a purpose of secondary education to determine the answer, that we cannot justify the expense if students are to continue for six or eight years under the old type of secondary education and that a real issue is whether we can pay the bill of mass education.

Retain All Pupils?
Mr. Nelson, in discussing whether secondary education should seek to retain all pupils in school or transfer some to other agencies that serve better their probable future needs, traced the development of the traditional philosophy regarding secondary education and assumed that secondary education can and will change to meet the needs of the students. He stated that he believed it necessary to model curricula in relation to health with emphasis on health, that there must be some emphasis upon the understanding of all curriculum in relation to the physical environment and that emphasis should be placed upon the use of the English language as a medium of expression.

Throwing out challenging statements for discussion material as he discussed secondary education for the welfare and progress of the individual or for the welfare and progress of society, Mr. Helble asked "Is the state interested in the individual only as he promises to contribute to society or is the state educating youth for the welfare and perpetuation of the state?"

Would Eliminate Courses
If the latter hypothesis be true said Mr. Helble, then biology and botany have no place in the curriculum because they do not contribute to the welfare and perpetuation of the state but physical education and health is necessary.

There is no place for basketball or football but there is a great deal of room for carry over into contributions to the welfare and perpetuation of the state. We would have to throw out Latin, Spanish, Greek, history, English grammar, algebra, geometry, shorthand, physics and chemistry for they have no contribution to the welfare and perpetuation of the state.

Should secondary education try to offer a common curriculum for all or a differentiated curriculum was discussed by Mr. Clark who said he believed that secondary education was trying to offer a curriculum to satisfy the demands of changing conditions but that several basic factors must be worked out to eliminate random chance.

"We must accept a dual responsibility, we must train students for life and for college, the latter representing a less difficult problem. There is one basic factor to the entire problem as I see it. Should we have a curriculum to follow social changes, reflect them, and accommodate the student to predictable

Seek New Attitudes
Discussing whether secondary education should assume responsibility for attitudes and ideals, Dr. Thiel claimed that the real issue was not a matter of attitudes but how shall we control the program to know what attitudes we shall seek for the students. There are three ways in which can be presented said Dr. Thiel, "we can proceed as we have tried to do according to our own ideas, we can live in such a way that attitudes are lived in or we can seek to control the type of attitude we are to inculcate."

Should secondary education merely seek to adjust the student to the prevailing social order or should it seek reconstruction of society was the topic under discussion by Dr. Evans who declared that reconstruction had always been and would continue to be a vital part of society.

Trust To Common Sense
"We should trust to the common sense of our school teachers and rather than theorists. Shall we be so sure of the wisdom of the adult social patterns of shall social, historical and traditional practices be so related to the student's education that he will be better equipped to adapt himself to the social order? A teacher is not a propagandist or a reformer. Yet what social philosophy are we going to teach the students, what plan of reconstruction? Who are these able and educated men who will act on a commission to direct such teaching?"

Forest Polk concluded his discussion of whether secondary education should be subordinate to college or set up its own objective by stating that he believed "if we are to reconstruct our entire curriculum also."

Students from Neenah and Menasha High schools presented a musical program prior to the talks.

Native Wisconsin Trees Conservation Commission Tells How to Identify Them, Discusses Their Value to State

The tamarack is found throughout the state, usually in poorly drained swamps, though in the north it is often found on well-drained uplands.

The leaves are scattered singly along the leading shoots, or clustered on the short lateral branches.

The wood is heavy, hard, very strong, rather close-grained, durable, light brown with thin, nearly white sapwood, and is used for fuel, ties, bridge plank, and dimension stock.

The tamarack was attacked by the larch sawfly about 1910 and most of the trees were killed, but excellent natural stands of saplings have sprung up.

The closely related Rueopcan larch, which requires well drained soil, has been widely planted in the southern part of the state. Its growth is rapid and the tree gives promise of being valuable for timber production.

Neenah Mapping Survey Given Approval by WPA

Neenah—A. G. Prunuske, city engineer and building inspector, announced at a council meeting in the city hall last evening that WPA officials had approved a mapping and engineering survey of Neenah and work would begin Feb. 16.

Individual maps of city blocks, including sewers, water mains and homes; a map of streets and sidewalks; a tax map; land value map; revision of the building file system and a large scale map of the city are included in the extensive survey.

The project will cost an estimated $6,013 with $4,398 being paid through federal funds and $1,615 of the cost being borne by the city of Neenah. About 12 men will be employed on the project for a 6-month period, according to Mr. Prunuske.

Millermen Meet Old Foes Here Friday Evening

Students of St. Mary High School Hold Pep Session Today

Menasha—Fresh from a 35 to 27 victory over Kaukauna High school Tuesday, St. John cagers of Little Chute will invade St. Mary gymnasium Friday night in an effort to take a Catholic conference game from the Millermen.

A pep session was held at St. Mary school this afternoon to show cagers that the student body is backing them to win against their natural foes from the Dutch city.

Coach Marvin Miller has been trying several new combinations in an effort to secure a winning team. Most of his material comes from the freshman and sophomore classes and the boys need experience and development more than wins this season.

Captain Bob Borenz, Hopfensperger, Resch and Goscak are the sure starters for Friday's tilt. With the absence of Spalding from the lineup, the coach will use either Prunuski or Tony Will.

LEGION WILL MEET

Wings For Sally

by BAILEY WOLFE

Chapter 46
A Midnight Visit
SALLY found Bob Dawes a good companion and dancing partner. Although Bob's father was immensely wealthy, Bob was neither arrogant nor lazy. He was interested in his father's business and worked hard for the salary he received. Sally liked him for his thorough good nature. She had always been touched by his devotion to Mary Morris, and she knew Mary had treated Bob shabbily sometimes.

They were having late supper on the roof garden.

"It was swell of you to come out with me," said Bob. "You're a pretty rare sort of a girl, you know—fun to be with and good to look at."

"But not like Mary," teased Sally.

"Honestly, I wish Mary were more like you. I never can make her out. She's—she's so darned uncertain. One minute I think I'm making a little headway with her—the next minute she treats me like the scum of the earth."

"That's probably why you love her," said Sally. "She's exciting because you never know what she'll do next."

"I don't think she really cares for this fellow, Page," said Bob. "He's not her sort. Pretty serious and a good bit older than she is."

"He's not so old," said Sally defensively. "He's barely five years older than Mary."

"Well, anyway, I think the main reason she wants him is that he hasn't paid her much attention. That always gets Mary." Bob played with his coffee spoon. "Only, she's been seeing him a good deal lately, I think."

"Let's dance, shall we?" said Sally. She couldn't bear to discuss Mary and Philip any longer.

It was late when they got back to Warren and Sally was surprised to hear voices on the porch. "Father's keeping late hours these days," she said to Bob, as they went up the front steps. They stopped, finding it impossible to go on. The man with her father was Philip Page.

"I'm Missing Romance"

In a sort of dream, she heard Bob and Philip speak to each other cordially and shake hands. She herself could not manage the most casual remark. The sight of Philip had set her blood racing. She was by turns hot and cold. She felt foolish and angry with herself. Philip was not excited at her arrival. He talked to the men casually. Why should she be so upset at the mere sight of him? She had seen him a thousand times before. Now he was preparing to go. He was getting up, saying goodnight to them all. She didn't want him to go. She wanted him to stay till Bob was gone, till her father left them alone. She wanted to talk to Philip, to discuss this mysterious something which had made a coldness between them. More than anything, she wanted back the friendship that had existed between them.

But she could think of nothing to detain Philip. She was so taken up with his going that she scarcely heard Bob's farewells. As he drove off, she stood staring at the Page house across the way. How she would have liked to go over and sit in the wicker chair under the magnolia. Perhaps Philip would come out and they would talk together as they used to. But she couldn't go over to the garden—not when Philip showed so plainly that he wanted to be left alone.

"Tired, my dear?" Mr. Warren put his arm around his daughter's shoulders. "You're very quiet tonight."

"Just—thinking," said Sally.

"Not about Terry Maynard I hope," said her father.

"No, of course not," said Sally quickly. "Why, Father?"

"I knew you fancied you were in love with him," said Mr. Warren. "But I knew you were far too sensible to cherish any such feeling—for your sister's husband."

"And I thought I was keeping my secret so well," cried Sally.

"You were keeping it very well, like the sensible girl you are—"

"Don't say that again, Father, or I'll scream. I know I've been sensible. Everyone tells me so. But I don't want to be any longer. I'm missing all this life of romance and excitement in the city. The others, Mary and Tip—that aren't sensible—are the ones who are happy."

"Then you do love young Maynard still?"

"I don't know. I don't think about him much any more. But it seems to me that everything exciting and pleasant—all the dreams I had of—of how I wanted to be happy—went out like a candle when I knew Terry didn't love me any more."

"Don't worry about me, old darling," she gave him a little squeeze. "We're all allowed to feel sorry for ourselves now and then. I just happened to pick tonight. Now run along to bed or Mother will be scolding me for keeping you up."

"Goodnight, my dear," said Mr. Warren. "You look very much like your own mother tonight in that white dress."

Sally was touched by the compliment. Mr. Warren rarely mentioned his first wife, but Sally knew that it was because he could not share his memory of her with anyone.

Symptoms Of Love

For a moment longer, Sally stood on the porch, watching the little point of light that shone through the branches of the big mimosa tree beside the Page house. As she turned to go into the hall, a car shot down Rosemary street and came to an abrupt stop in front of the Page house. With a feeling that what she saw was incredible, Sally realized that it was Mary Morris' roadster. She saw Mary get out, alone, and hurry up the walk between the boxwood hedges to the front door of Philip's house. In the still night air, Sally heard plainly the door opening, voices, then the closing of the door.

She turned, and fled upstairs to her own room. How could Philip have said he loved her that day in the office? One couldn't fall in and

Ohio River Flood Taken As 'One of Those Things'

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

French Lick, Ind.—This certainly is no attempt to debunk a disaster or to deal flippantly with the tragedy of the great flood. But there is a large discrepancy between the demeanor of the people in the flood country and the emotional minds-eye portrait of them formed by the rest of the nation.

Though their fellow-Americans elsewhere sympathize with them they are innocent of self-pity and when the water goes down they will follow it back inch by inch to save what they can from the wreckage which will be very little and start all over. It was the same in the little settlements of Belle Glade and Lockhaven on Lake Okechobee, Florida, after the terrible blow which scooped the water out of the largest fresh water lake in the country except Michigan blew it over the dikes and killed about 2000 pioneers of the last American frontier by drowning or snake bite.

When the water ran off, the survivors went back to their farms. There has been more excitement in New York than in Tell City, Ind., which is mostly under water.

A few nights ago in Evansville as the Ohio crept up the last remaining slight rise of ground there was a little disgust because some radio announcer apparently reading from a script prepared by an old school re-writer man, remarked in ominous tones that grim faced men with muskets were patrolling the streets. The grim faced men with high civilized militia boys, many of them high school students and their relations with the citizens were entirely neighborly.

Pegler Finds Sort of County Fair Spirit

In fact although many poor people had been wiped out and the local aristocracy had lost heavily in household stuff and factory equipment, there was nevertheless a sort of county fair spirit abroad, comparable to the excitement in the capital of a country which has just declared war but hasn't yet been shelled or bombed.

Since then I have been in Newburgh, Rockport, Tell City and Alton, Ind., and in Owensboro and in Cloverport, on the Kentucky side, and the manner of the people makes it almost possible to understand the reports of censorship in Louisville where the mayor seems to resent as dramatics the descriptions of the flood sent out of his town.

The loss of life has been comparatively small to date, considering the large population of the flood country and the danger of disease was cried up so loud and so early and met so vigorously that in all probability there will be very little sickness. So aside from the mortality which is regrettable but might have been much worse there is nothing the matter that money will not cure.

There were no drownings in any points which I touched in three days on the coast guard picket boat 2318, and of the ten patients in the little hospital at Tell City most were elderly people down with colds or heart failure. The money to cure the damage will come straight from Washington because a large proportion of the victims are included in that one-third of the American population whom Mr. Roosevelt in his inaugural address described as ill-fed, ill-housed and ill-clothed. He was planning to get around to them pretty soon anyway.

People Indifferent To Guards, Soldiers

If the people have such a thing as an attitude toward the troops and the coast guards I would say that it ranges between indifference and mild resentment. Certainly they do not regard them as deliverers and they are just the least bit impatient of the restrictions imposed by martial law. At Lockport a gang of civilians were unloading with sacks a barge of soft coal and hastily dumping it on the road in order to release the barge and towboat as soon as possible. One of the civilians fell out of line to light a cigarette and scratch his back and the sentry who was unarmed yelled at him to snap back into it. The loafer obeyed but glared at the soldier for he had been publicly humiliated and had to take it but the soldier said "I've got my duty and you have yours" and there was no more conversation about that.

The coast guards shipped in with their boats from the Great Lakes and from the Atlantic coast between Maine and Virginia hold themselves apart from the population and go through their assignments without ostentation. But they can hardly do justice to their reputation as life savers for much of the force has been sent up-river from the crest into a country where the refugees were brought out long ago.

Down below the coast guards are handicapped by the type of their boats which are small patrols with little space for supplies or refugees and draw more water than scows. The surf boats are useful but the best craft for rescue work in the river are flat boats which can go into shallow water and carry out a hundred while a picket takes off a dozen. But the men themselves know how and when the emergency came any boat that was a boat probably seemed appropriate in Washington.

There will now be heard some of the most fantastic foolishness that the world has ever known on the subject of flood control but no spread of forests or grass would have dunked up this one. A sheet of coast will absorb only so much hot milk or pollock and this was just one hell of a lot of water which would have run down to the river even in the days of the Indians.

There is now some talk of building basins to catch the floods and dribble them out concretely for occasions the like of this. That is all right but they will have to be ocean basins.

Introduce Bill To Give Cities More Supervisors

Would Permit Greater Representation Without Creating New Wards

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Appleton and other cities in Wisconsin will be permitted to have more representatives on their county boards of supervisors, if a bill introduced in the assembly Tuesday by Assemblyman Mark Catlin Jr. (Dem.) Appleton, is enacted into law by the legislature.

Assemblyman Catlin's bill calls for the amendment of the statutes on city and county government to allow county board representatives from divisions smaller than wards, if those divisions have the minimum population as required by law. The bill provides that supervisors may be chosen from precincts in cities, besides from wards, as under the present system.

The new method would be optional with the city councils, according to Mr. Catlin, who does not predict any great opposition to his measure, which has the support of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Catlin said that a number of other cities in Wisconsin have not at present the representation on their county board to which they are entitled on the basis of population, and he is gathering statistics to support his contention for presentation to the committee which hears the bill. At present the measure is in the hands of the committee on revisions, but will be on the calendar soon for reference to a hearing committee.

Small municipalities, those of 800 population or less, would have one supervisor, as under the present law, in the provision of the Catlin bill. The measure also specifies that supervisors shall be elected at the same time as village and city officers, as at present.
